DOMESTIC POLITICAL CONTESTS PREVIEWED

This is an election year. The time has arrived for aspirants for office to make known their desires. A few have already come out in the open and declared their intentions while many others are watching the trend of events before throwing their hats in the political ring. There are still others who are in a receptive mood waiting to be called by the voter to make a "sacrifice" on the altar of their country.

Several are seeking the senatorial toga, now so gracefully adorning the broad shoulders of Samuel M. Shortridge. There is to be a big battle for this position. Shortridge is well girded for the fray. None will shatter his foil. He will come out of the conflict a victor, far in the lead of any of his competitors. Shortridge has done too much for California to be thrown aside for some new and inexperienced candidate.

Congressman Arthur M. Free will succeed himself. He will have only feeble opposition. His splendid work in securing the air base for Sunnyvale has earned his re-election. To change this experienced public servant for a new man would be the height of folly.

For the first time in the history of San Mateo county it will have a state senator all its own. For years this county and Santa Cruz county composed one senatorial district. Both entered into a gentleman's agreement whereby they alternated the election of a senator. Santa Cruz would have the office for four years then it would be San Mateo's turn to fill the place. This agreement was adhered to for many years until the district was reapportioned at the time San Benito county came into the fold. Then San Mateo took the bull by the horns and elected its own senator, having considerably more votes than the other two counties. There is to be a scramble for the position this year. Harry Parkman, the present assemblyman, has already announced that he will be a candidate. Ex-Mayor W. H. Taylor of San Mateo is mentioned as a probable aspirant. Many others will come to the fore ere long. It is said J. J. McGrath, the popular judge of San Mateo, is to be the democratic candidate.

Attorney Anderson of Burlingame is being urged by his friends for the republican nomination for assemblyman. Attorney Whitehead of Redwood City has announced that he will be the democratic candidate. Others are likely to join the fray before next June when the time for filing nomination certificates arrives.

There are two judges to be chosen this year. From present indications there is going to be a mammoth struggle for those positions among the members of the bar of the county. Many will seek the ermine. Judge Franklin Swart, who was chosen by Governor Rolph to fill the judgeship created by the last legislature, is doing well and filling the position ably and to the satisfaction of lawyer and layman. He will be a candidate and has a splendid chance to succeed himself. Should Judge Buck choose to run it is more than certain he will be unopposed. In failing to be a candidate, a number of aspiring attorneys will come into the field and battle for supremacy. Among those mentioned are: Gilbert D. Ferrell, Redwood City, an able lawyer with a fine judicial temperament and an analytic mind. Such qualification would make him an ideal judge. John E. Manders, an aspiring young lawyer of Redwood City, formerly of Burlingame, having a keen legal mind, would adorn the bench. Judge John Davis, city attorney of Burlingame, has a longing eye on the judgeship. His friends in the northern portion of the county are urging him to make the run. Attorney Thomas H. Breeze of Hillsborough, is said to be an aspirant. Maxwell McNutt, who figured so prominently in the Flood will contest, may become a candidate. Percy Jackson, the justice of the peace of San Mateo, has aspirations. Attorney Cotton of San Mateo with offices in San Francisco, would like to have the title "judge" attached to his name. Others will appear before the campaign is over. It is to be a mighty scramble.

There are three supervisors to be elected, one from the first, one from the third and the other from the fourth township. The incumbents are seeking election. Thomas Hickey of the first has always had a stiff opposition but has weathered the storm. This year's battle is to be as severe as ever. A strong opponent is to be put against him, but he hopes to make the hurdles.

Manuel Francis, chairman of the board, is to have hostile resistance. The township covers vast territory as the old fifth and fourth have been merged. Manuel Pat Cordoza of Half Moon Bay is to line up against his sturdy opponent. This is going to be a savage encounter, and who will win nobody knows.

Supervisor John Poole in the third, has his political fences in splendid condition. It will take a strong contender to break down this barrier. His roads in the township are as good as his fences. With fine roads and strong fences he should win. It is said he may be opposed by Jack Frost.

All in all the people may look to a lively political campaign next fall, probably the most strenuous in the history of the county.

In May the electorate will vote on two important measures—county charter and the annexation proposition. These alone should bring out the voters.

$57,000 OF DUNNE EST. DISTRIBUTED

Amount 5 Per Cent Of Huge Fortune Left By Woman

Fifty seven thousand dollars was approved for distribution to legatees of the will of the late Viola K. Dunne, Hillsborough social figure, by Superior Judge George H. Buck yesterday. This is 5 per cent of the $1,156,000 estate.

University Benefits

Santa Clara University gets the biggest share, $10,000, toward the $200,000 which it will receive for the James F. Dunne Memorial Scholarship. Dunne, her husband, was "cattle king" of San Benito county

The city of Hollister was awarded $3750 toward the $75,000 Dunne Memorial Park; San Jose Day Nursery, $250; Wheeler Hospital Association of Gilroy, $500; Homeopathic Foundation of California, San Francisco, $5000 toward a $100,000 institution for care of the sick; Mrs. V. A. Scheller, wife of a San Jose attorney, $250; Dr. Howard Engle, executor, $1000.

Nuns Share

The Discalced Order of Carmelites, Santa Clara, was given $2000, and the Sisters of Charity of St Vincent de Paul, formerly of Hollister, $500.

This is the first step in distribution of the estate, contest over which was settled recently out of court.

Mrs. Dunne died April 22, 1930.

FUNERAL OF LATE R. C. WOMAN HELD

The funeral of Mrs. Carrie E Gillespie, well-known resident of Redwood City, who passed away in Berkeley early Tuesday morning, took place yesterday afternoon from the chapel of the James Crowe Co. Christian Science services were held. Cremation followed in Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Mrs. Gillespie is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Emily Alton of Los Angeles and Mrs. Elizabeth Egleston of Berkeley, a son, William W. Gillespie of Redwood City, and a brother, William Hopkins, of San Francisco.

Born in Providence, Rhode Island, Mrs. Gillespie came to California while a young girl and resided for a number of years at Santa Barbara. She had made her home in Redwood City for close to 30 years and had a large circle of friends here. For a number of years Mrs. Gillespie conducted a dairy business on Roosevelt avenue.

Barger's Death Sudden Shock

An inquest was held by Coroner McGovern Tuesday to inquire into the death of J. J. Barger, who passed away on Thursday of last week at his home in Fifth avenue, Middlefield road. Barger died suddenly in his dwelling while conversing with tenants. The jury found that the cause of death was acute cardiacal failure, heart affection.

Barger had lived in Redwood City for twelve years, the most of the time at Fifth avenue. He was a mining man, aged 65.

During his mining career he visited Africa, Australia, and other places in search of the yellow metal, meeting with varied success. Sometimes he was broke and at other periods he had a fortune.

While in Australia he met President Hoover, both working the same property. They became fast friends and this friendship continued up until the time of Barger's death.

Barger retired some years ago with a comfortable fortune. He was fond of adventure and loved to tell of the happy days in the Dark Continent and of his travels in Kangaroo land and of his first meeting with the future president.

Grand Jury Advocates Road District Merger, New Courthouse Wing

Unification of its road districts, replacement of the "firetrap" juvenile detention home and provision of funds to build a new wing to the courthouse were the three outstanding recommendations Tuesday of the 1931-32 San Mateo County Grand Jury.

No indictments were returned by the jury, Superior Judge George H. Buck was informed as he received the official copy of the report shortly after 1 o'clock Tuesday. He thanked the jury for its work and then dismissed the body.

The grand jury went on record as opposed to any large direct tax for either the courthouse or the detention home.

All officers of the county were found to be efficiently handled and the heads of all departments were commended by the jurors.

Concerning the road districts the jurors said:

"San Mateo county, like many other counties, is still operating under the old five-unit road organization, set up by the state legislature before the days of the autmobile, when our highway system consisted of one-way dirt roads, built entirely out of local taxes and donations.

"While our road laws have since been amended to permit the unified control necessary for the economical construction of modern highways, these new laws were not made mandatory and only a few counties have taken advantage of them. San Mateo county still has five road districts with five sets of road equipment, each district operated by its supervisor, entirely independent of the other districts.

"Naturally no cohesion of organization or unity in road planning or economy in expenditures can be expected.

"We therefore, recommend unification of county road organizations by the appointment of a county road superintendent to have charge of all road maintenance and construction under the supervision of the board of supervisors of the county surveyor, as provided by law."

Detention Home

Regarding the juvenile detention home, the jury declared:

The detention home was visited by the grand jury who find it subject to considerable criticism, as the building is unfit for housing juvenile wards; it is an old wooden building, in constant danger in the event of fire. The majority of the windows are barred and the rooms locked, and should a fire occur, there might be serious loss of life.

At present all windows on the southside of the home face directly into the cells of the county jail —a bad influence on the juvenile wards.

We further recommend that the board of supervisors provide a gradually growing budget for the erection of a new detention home in a more suitable location.

FIELD EXECUTIVE OF SCOUTS NAMED

Christy T. Allen, who comes here from Santa Ana, has been appointed field executive of the San Mateo County Council, Boy Scouts of America. He will reside in Redwood City and operate under the supervision of county headquarters in Burlingame, where E. A. Barrer is county executive.

Allen's territory will embrace San Carlos, Woodside, Atherton, East Palo Alto, Menlo Park and rural sections, in addition to Redwood City.

Allen was affiliated with the Oakland council; is an Eagle scout and was a voluntary leader in the eastbay city. He took up the work professionally four years ago; went to the Arizona council at Phoenix and then took the national scout training course in New York. From there he went to Santa Ana. He attended the University of California.

The new scout official will have full charge in Redwood City. He comes here through arrangements made by Edward T. Harrison and Carl Wagner, who represent Redwood City on the executive board of the county council.

PARK COMMITTEE TO DEBATE BONDS

A special meeting of the citizens' committee on parks and recreation has been called by Paul F. McCarthy, chairman, for Monday, February 1, at 7 o'clock, in the chamber of commerce office.

The purpose is to consider whether the committee would favor submission of a bond issue for playgrounds and recreational equipment during the present year.

Any recommendation which the committee may make will go to the city council the same evening at 8 o'clock.

Right Of Way For Gas Line Sought

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company today brought suit in Redwood City to secure a right of way to complete its natural gas pipe line between San Francisco and Milpitas. The property sought is near the Skyline boulevard in this township.

Defendants are H. C. Christensen et al, Louisa Budde and T. W. Seaver. A 10-foot strip is sought.

David C. Broderick and David S. Terry fought their historic duel in the northern part of San Mateo county September 13, 1859, in which the former was fatally wounded.

Colorado contains 43 mountain peaks which are more than 14,000 feet above sea sevel.

FRAUD ALLEGED IN LACE SALES

Two women giving their names as Mary and Betty Riley, sisters, were taken into custody by Redwood City police Wednesday while attempting to sell lace, which they claimed to be imported from Ireland, at the Lincoln school.

Taken before Justice of the Peace Edward I. McAuliffe on charges of violating city ordinance 319, prohibiting selling without a license, the two women were given suspended sentences, and ordered out of the city.

The police issued a public warning against people who offer such goods for sale. The Riley women, who affected an Irish brogue, claimed that the lace was made by their grandmother in Ireland, police were informed. They made but one sale.

School teachers were victimized by a similar pair operating in Redwood City two years ago.

S. S. F. ROBBERY SUSPECTS HELD

Undersheriff Lawrence Nieri and Chief Louis Belloni, South San Francisco, left Redwood City Thursday for Merced Falls, near Merced, where two suspects were being held in connection with a market robbery in South San Francisco yesterday.

Three thugs Wednesday morning walked into the Lincoln Market, 475 Grand avenue, half a block from the police station, and obtained $44 from V. Gagliani, proprietor.

P. G. & E. SPENDING $19,300 AT LAKE

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has approved orders for an expenditure of $19,300 for additional power facilities in the vicinity of Searsville Lake.

According to W. T. Kellogg, district manager, the territory adjacent to the lake has been served from lines extending from the Redwood City substation. Growth and development of the territory, with increasing demands for electric energy, necessitate the building of a new substation and the rearrangement of power lines to serve consumers in that section.

Cafe Operator's Suit For $2,000 Dismissed

Dismissal was filed by S. Churchill of his complaint for $2000 damages against G. A. Wendt and Mrs. Wendt whom he accused of selling liquor and injuring the trade of his Burlingame cafe Tuesday.

Co. Harbor Committee Sets Date For Its First Meeting

TRIBUNE PLANT DRAWS LARGE CROWD

New Building Opened Formally Last Night

The new and modern building of the Redwood City Tribune, located at California and Montgomery streets, was opened formally last evening.

Thousands of people strolled through the brilliantly lighted plant inspecting each department. Publisher Sam Winklebleck and Editor Carroll Hall were kept busy receiving the congratulations of the visitors.

The new emergency hospital of Drs. Harry E. Mason and Robert F. Moneith, in the same structure, was also crowded with people.

Orchestral music was furnished by a Stanford campus group and cider punch was served.

The Redwood City Tribune is one of a group of papers published by the Peninsula Newspapers, Inc., of which George F. Morell is president.

County Statistical Report Ready

Edward M. Stack, the popular county auditor, has just issued his annual statistical condition of the county for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931.

It is an interesting document, covering every phase of the finances of the county, showing receipts and disbursements.

The report is ready for distribution and may be had at the office of the auditor in the courthouse.

WIDOWER MARRIES MOTHER-IN-LAW

Charles J. Collings thought so much of his mother-in-law he married her here Tuesday and added the comment "There's no mother-in-law joke about this."

The bride, Mrs. Mary E. Williams, is the mother of Collings' first wife who died several years ago.

"We always got along beautifully," Collings said after the ceremony, "and we had been thinking about getting married for a long time, so we just up and did it."

The couple will live in San Francisco where Collings is a substation operator for a utility company.

They were married by Judge Edward McAuliffe.

TIME EXTENDED FOR FILTRATION

The Railroad Commission has extended the time until April 25, 1932, in which the Hillsborough Water Company is to complete the installation of filtration facilities and equipment for the filtration of the entire supply of water received by it from the 44-inch transmission main of the water department of the city of San Francisco.

J. Boila Will Is Filed For Probate

Justin Fourcans, 319 Linden avenue, South San Francisco, yesterday filed for probate the will of the late Jacques Boila, who died in San Francisco on December 18, 1931.

Fourcans and Gregoire Bouret, Los Gatos, were jointly left the $22,500 estate in Boila's will.

HALEY'S CASE HELD TO FEB. 4 FOR PLEADING

Buster H. Haley, the negro who shot and killed Zettie Gains, his enomorata, at Five Points on January 8, was arraigned in the superior court yesterday and the time fixed for pleading was set for February 4. Albert Mansfield is the attorney for the prisoner.

Non-Support to Be Punishable With Imprisonment

Guy Coons, charged with non-support of four minor children, appeared in Judge Swart's court yesterday and was given until next Thursday to plead.

The court declared that hereafter anyone found guilty of non-support of children who may have to be taken care of by the county, would be sent to prison. In other words if the county were compelled to care for minors, the father, too, would be cared for with imprisonment.

ATTEMPT MADE TO STEAL RADIO

Dr. August J. Fromm Jr. reported to the Redwood City Police Department Wednesday the attempted theft of a radio set from his offices in the Andrew building on California street off Broadway.

The intruder, who was frightened away by the approach of John Manders, an attorney occupying an adjoining office, left the radio set wrapped in paper on the floor of Dr. Fromm's office and made his escape.

Entry was gained through a door left open by Dr. Fromm when he went to lunch, police were told.

INCREASED WATER RATE IS DENIED

Declaring that sufficient revenue can be obtained to make the service compensatory, the railroad commission has denied the application of the Ratterree Bros. Co. to increase water rates in subdivision No. 1, Schwerin Addition, Visitacion Valley, San Mateo county, from the present rate of $2 a month to $4 a month.

The company buys its water from the city of San Francisco on a measured basis.

Salary of Court Auditor Well Earned

C. E. Piatt, San Mateo, who audited the books of the county offices for the grand jury, received the sum of $650 for his work. Mr. Piatt is an expert accountant, extremely conscientious about his work. Two months' time and the services of one assistant were required to complete the task. Considering these facts, the amount received was indeed moderate.

Co. Auditor Once Trapeze Act Star

A time-colored program, rereceived by County Auditor Edward M. Stack, recalled that he and C. F. Morel, Eaton avenue resident, performed in the "big act" on the "Grand Athletic Exhibition" of the Olympic Club in San Francisco, December 21, 1893.

BELMONT TO BE SCENE OF EVENT FEB. 3

Dinner At 6:30 Will Mark Beginning Of Port Study

The first meeting of the San Mateo County Harbor Development Committee recently appointed by the board of supervisors will be held February 3.

The committee will meet at 6:30 o'clock on that date in the Blue Lantern Cafe at Belmont. Notices have been sent out by County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman.

Expansion of the Citizens' Harbor Development Committee of Redwood City to one representing the entire county was recently brought about through united action of Redwood City, Burlingame, San Mateo, Menlo Park, San Carlos and other representatives who met with the supervisors in the county courthouse at a night session.

Here's Committee

The county harbor committeemen are: District 1, Ira Potter; district 2, Judge John J. McGrath; district 3 (has citizens' harbor committee); district 4, Guy Smith; district 5, A. B. Cargill; Lawndale, M. Jensen; Daly City, John Fahey; South San Francisco, Andrew Hynding; Belmont, D. St. George; Hillsborough, Arthur Redington; San Bruno, Judge Rudolph Rapsey; San Mateo, John D. Bromfield; Half Moon Bay, George Dunn; Pescadero, J. C. Williamson; Burlingame, Mayor C. A. Buck; San Carlos, Merritt Hosmer; Menlo Park, W. H. Weeden; Atherton, Edward Eyre Jr., and Ravenswood, J. H. Stubbe.

The local citizens' committee has Carl Stoner, chairman; Mayor D. R. Stafford, Carl Wagner, Elmore Hinman, Edward T. Harrison; City Manager E. A. Rolison, City Engineer C. L. Dimmitt and Howard I. Wood, manager of the chamber of commerce.

Possibility of creating a port district of county-wide scope or less will be one of the chief topics for discussion.

NO SYMPATHY IN COURT FOR INTOXICATED DRIVERS

Oscar Laren was sentenced to serve five days in the county jail out of his probation of one year. He was found guilty of driving a car while under the influence of liquor on Main street on December 5.

Judge Swart took this occasion to announce that all offenders found guilty of this crime would invariably be sent to jail, no matter who they were or how meritorous their case.

Probation Officer Robinson, to whom the case was referred, gave Laren a clean bill of health, saying that his reputation was first class.

Geo. E. Stafford Community Loss

With the passing of George E. Stafford, last Friday, Redwood City lost one of its earliest and most respected citizens. Mr. Stafford, though a native of San Francisco, spent practically his entire life in this community where he was affiliated with the grocery firm of Stafford and Long.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Alice E. Stafford; two daughters, Elise Louise and Nancy Jane; a son, George Holden; and two brothers, Dr. David E. Stafford of San Francisco and Mayor Daniel R. Stafford of this city.

Funeral services were held Monday morning from the home at 910 Edgewood, followed by a requiem mass at Mount Carmel Church.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL DEDICATED HERE

Mount Carmel parochial school's new building at Katherine and Grand streets was dedicated Wednesday afternoon with brief exercises on the occasion of the laying of the cornerstone.

Father John Byrne of St. Mary's Cathedral, San Francisco, officiated. Others participating were Father John P. Cavanagh, Father William Flanagan and Father John Kelly, all of Our Lady of Mount Carmel parish, and Father Edmond McAllister of San Jose.

The $100,000 structure will be completed in time for occupation this spring.

FOUR COUNCILMEN SEEK RE-ELECTION

Mayor Daniel R. Stafford and Councilmen George W. McNulty, Charles G. Lambert and Paul A. McCarthy have announced their candidacy for re-election to the Redwood City council at the April election.

They are the four members of the council whose terms of office expire in April. The holdover councilmen are William J. Dusel, Charles Hildebrant and Henry A Beeger.

In announcing their intentions, the incumbents gave out the following statement:

"The incumbents, with the cooperation of their associates, have given the new charter, which became effective on July 1, 1929, their loyal support, and, with a personnel of courteous officers and employes, have provided a local government which is efficient, business-like and economical.

"Support of the policies of the present city council by the press, by improvement clubs and other civic organiaztions, and by the citizens has encouraged these members whose terms of office will soon expire to believe that the voters wish to have a continuance of their public service and administration of our local government.

"With gratitude and appreciation to the citizens of Redwood City for the loyal and generous support given to the council's efforts in behalf of Redwood City the undersigned submit to the voters their candidacy for re-election."

The statement was signed by the four candidates.

Man Brought For Auto Theft Trial

John Carr, 42, baker, wanted here for theft of the car of C. H Miller, of North Fair Oaks, in this city Monday, was brought from Martinez Wednesday by Police Sergt. Stanley Wood and Officer S. E. Douglass. He awaits a hearing before Police Judge Edward McAuliffe.

CORNER STONE LAID AT MT. CARMEL ACADEMY

Simple services marked the laying of the corner stone of the new Mount Carmel Academy now nearing completion at the corner of Katherine and Grand streets. Rev. Father John Byrne of San Francisco officiated in the presence of the school children, the Sisters, and a few of the parents who were free to attend.

An envelope of historic data including a few memorial coins and a couple of issues of the Times-Gazette were sealed behind the marble flag stone.

The ground for this handsome structure costing approximately $100,000 was broken on September 3 in the presence of Mayor Stafford and city building inspector, I. C. Drathman. Work has continued steadily under the supervision of Louis N. Pollard, contractor, such that now the finishing touches are being applied on the inside of the building.

The architectural plan follows closely the old Mission design. One wing of the building runs along Grand street and accommodates the ten class rooms. The other wing follows Katherine street and is divided into two units—a spacious auditorium and stage capable of entertaining 400 guests and a smaller lodge hall for impromptu gatherings. Conveniently situated between these two units is a kitchenette equipped to serve either one.

Cloistered just inside the main entrance at the corner of Katherine and Grand streets are the offices and reception rooms of the Sisters. Similarly situated on the second floor are the individual practice music rooms encased in half-glass walls which enable the instructor to supervise the activities of all the students without interferring with their privacy.

The construction of the building is in keeping with the most modern and scientific knowledge of the day—fireproof concrete walls, tiled roof, steam heat, and plenty of ventilation. Windows line the building on all sides and doors are conviently located at all angles.

In as much as the academy possesses the whole block, plenty of room remains for playground. This will still hold true even when the proposed church, convent, and priest house became a reality.

Father Cavanagh and the parish are indeed to be congratulated for their activity. The result of their effort and sacrifice is as fine an asset as can be contributed to the community.

Menlo Park

The Unemployment committee on Monday evening last, met and transacted considerable routine business. The funds are getting to a low level and ways and means will have to be devised to swell the fund. The committee will hold an important meeting next Monday night at the city hall.

Captain Baker, who was kidnaped by Chinese bandits in the interior of China last week, is an uncle of George B. Walsh of this city. A sister of the late Martin Walsh, a former constable of this township, married Baker many years ago. He was always a seafaring man and at the time of his capture was captain of a vessel in China. While going up one of the large rivers of the country he was taken from his vessel and brought to some secluded place in the interior by his captors who sent word to the owners of the vessel that they wanted $200,000 before the captain would be released. Baker knows the country well and speaks the language. Baker is well known in San Francisco. If the money is not forthcoming from the shipping company it is feared Baker will be put to death. Mr. Walsh, here, is in communication with his relatives but up to this time no encouraging reports have been received from the captain.

Frank Litner, a former police officer of Menlo Park, was found not guilty by a jury Monday evening in the city court. Litner was charged by Chief Love with a traffic violation. It alleged that Litner on December 24 last, drove directly across Santa Cruz avenue from the automatic signal near the bank building to Piggly Wiggly's. Much conflicting testimony was offered. The jury was out about fifteen minutes when it returned with a verdict of not guilty. Judge Rapsey of San Bruno represented the defendant, and City Attorney Whitworth prosecuted. Both young attorneys showed ability in presenting and defending the case. Court Reporter Girvin reported the suit.

A meeting of the committees from the native Sons' and Native Daughters' Parlors and the P.-T. A. will hold a meeting on Tuesday next to arrange a program for planting two redwood trees, one at the Fremont school and the other at the Central school on February 22. This is sponsored by President Hoover. An orator for the occasion has not been selected as yet, but Samuel M. Shortridge Jr., has been asked to make the address.

The members of St. Joseph's Alumi will meet this evening to arrange a play to be presented sometime in March. It is to be an all-star cast. D. E. Sullivan, the widely known dramatist, will train the actors and actresses.

Attorney Davis, with offices in the Sutton building, just returned from Siskiyou county, where he inspected his mining property near the Forks of the Salmon. He brought some splendid specimens of ore which assay well and speaks volumes for the mine.

On February 11 Grand Trustee Miller of the Native Sons of the Golden West will pay an official visit to the local parlor. The visit is to be made the occasion of a big gathering of native sons from all neighboring parlors.

The food sale for the benefit of the unemployed, takes place in the Murray building tomorrow. Housewives and others are requested to send home-made products for the sale. The proceeds are to be devoted to the cause of those out of employment. All should aid this good work by not only bringing pies and cakes but a full pocketbook to make purchases.

Some time ago a man by the name of K. L. Martin, a gardener here, was sued for a divorce by his wife. The similarity of names has caused some confusion and made it embarrassing for Kenneth L. Martin, the widely known and popular plumber of Menlo Park. Many learning of the case thought it was the local mechanic that was sued. Mr. and Mrs. Martin are living happily together with nothing to mar their loving devotion for each other. It is hoped this explanation will set the matter at rest.

Six Menlo Park young people who attend the Sequoia Union High School visited the United States Veterans' Administration Hospital Saturday. The tour of hospital shops, kitchens, and other buildings was arranged by Clarence Dyer, Menlo Park police officer, through Dr. P. G. Lasche, medical officer in charge.

Those in the party were Beatrice Stentiford, Joy Martin, Dorothy Denton, Leo Aabel, Katherine Sparks and Margaret Sparks. In the absence of the teacher, Miss L. Neff, Mrs. Thomas Stentiford chaperoned the group.

Plans are being made for the visit of a larger party from the school to the hospital in the near future.

The ex-service men of Menlo Park and vicinity have banded together and organized a new post of the American Legion. Charter has been granted by the Department of California, and the post henceforth will be known as Menlo Park Post No. 443. Phil Blanchard is the newly elected commander, and he has appointed Chas. W. Call as his adjutant. Other officers of the post will be announced later.

Commander Blanchard has arranged for a public initiation and installation of officers at the Masonic Hall, Menlo Park, Wednesday evening, February 10 at 8:15 o'clock. The initiatory degree will be given by the degree team of the San Mateo county 40 and 8 Society headed by Comrade Angelo J. Rocca, chef de gare. The installation of officers will be conducted by District Commander T. Louis Chese of San Mateo Post, assisted by Second Vice Commander Rudolph A. Rapsey of San Bruno.

The posts of San Mateo and San Francisco counties comprising the eighth district, will be represented at this meeting to pay their respects to the newly organized post. Friends of the Legion are invited to attend.

Among the artists represented during the Palo Alto Art Club's recent annual exhibition at the Thomas Welton Stanford Art Gallery was Miss Louise Hahn of Menlo Park, whose pastels created favorable comment.

Only within the past six months Miss Hahn selected pastels as another outlet for expression and her portraits show a maturity in technique and a clean-cut beauty of feature that indicate extraordinary talent.

Two of her latest subjects are her cousin, Mrs. J. H. Turner, and her father, A. G. C. Hahn. A self-portrait was exhibited at the Stanford Art Gallery.

Miss Hahn has been pupil of Hoyt Sherman and Will Rannel, both of Ohio State University, and more recently Russell Iredale, the latter well known in the bay region.

This unusually versatile young exhibitor has also completed a number of etchings and dry points, her most recent being "Qui Vive?"—a police dog study.

As a member of the Palo Alto Art Club Miss Hahn will exhibit again this fall in the Palo Alto Library Gallery.

Miss Hahn is a very charming and beautiful girl with a host of friends on the peninsula. The skilful young lady has resided in Menlo Park all her life. She has accompanied her parents on trips abroad several times.

The city council met in regular session Tuesday night, all members being present with the exception of Anderson. In the absence of the city clerk, Councilman Crane was appointed in her stead to report the proceedings of the meeting.

Only routine business was transacted. Claims amounting to several hundred dollars were allowed and passed.

A communication was read from residents of Johnson street, asking for a date to be set for hearing protests on the improvements done on that street and just completed. As the council had already fixed a date, February 2, to hear protests, the letter was ordered filed.

The claim of J. J. Furnivall for $80 for damages done his building, caused by the falling of an oak tree, was allowed to the extent of $20.

A telegram was received from Washington yesterday from Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, who has been in a hospital at the capital for some time, stating that he was recovering nicely and would be able to be on the floor of the senate early next week. The telegram was sent to Samuel Shortridge Jr., of this city.

The rainfall for the past week was .19 of an inch making a total for the season of 11.40 inches.

Divorce Cases Involving Children Should Be Last Resort

Kenneth L. Martin, gardener, was up before Judge Swart yesterday for probation. Martin was sued by his wife for divorce and maintenance. He was given probation for two years and is to pay his wife $30 a month for the support of his two children.

Judge Swart took the occasion to make a rule that in divorce proceedings where children are involved, he would be loath in granting a divorce. He would exhaust every means to keep couples together under such circumstances.

LEGION DIVISION IN R. C. SESSION

More than 100 representatives of eight American Legion posts in San Mateo county and 16 in San Francisco attended a district meeting of the eighth division in the Central school auditorium Monday night.

County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman, speaking for Mayor Daniel R. Stafford, greeted the delegates. Among the guests of honor were John W. Poole, supervisor of San Mateo county, and Milton Shapiro, San Francisco attorney.

W. W. Hendricks, commander of Redwood City Post No. 105, presided. Fred Crumb, post adjutant, also officiated.

The group adjourned to the local Legion headquarters for refreshments following the business session.

Temple's comet will be closest to the earth about the middle of next November and will offer an inspiring sight in the sky.

HISTORY OF GIRL SCOUTING IN REDWOOD CITY RECORDED

Girl Scouting started in Redwood City in 1925 when Mrs. L. N. McNeil took seven small girls to view a tree planting ceremony by scouts in Palo Alto. The group purchased a handbook the same afternoon and decided to have a troop immediately. Mrs. A. S. Kalenborn was asked to be a sponsor in this district by the Palo Alto Girl Scout council. Mrs. Kalenborn secured Mrs. Donald Bogie for the first troop captain. Sixteen girls met and leaders and girls began their tenderfoot test. All received their pins at the same investiture service.

The first registrations were not kept, but the first file on record at Girl Scout headquarters lists these girls as members: Florence Wikoff, Gladys Wikoff, Mabel Duncan, Mary Jane Duncan, Harriett Whiting, Elizabeth Maehl, Shirley Baughn, Beth Mansfield, Leila Swett, Harriett Kelting, Maxine Anderson, Marguerite Zircle, Dorothy Gould, Shirley Langford, Ora Palmer, Mardel Hirsch. Mrs. Bogie remained captain for five years, and was succeeded by the present captain, Mrs. R. H. Pollock.

When the Cardinal troop registered for the first time in 1928 the leaders were Miss Maude Stilleson and Mrs. Adelina Jameson, this troop's present leaders.

Early scout activities covered the two first tests and many outdoor pursuits. An over night trip made possible by Leonard and Holt remains the highlight in the early troop log.

The expansion of Girl Scouting began two years after the first troop registered, when the Flying Eagle troop, under Miss Maude Stilleson, was organized, and troop No. 3 was registered by Mrs. T. M. Cole. Following these troops, now led by Mrs. F. L. Soule and Mrs. Praetzel, two more troops were added in 1928, the Cardinal and High School troops. Three years ago a second development registered troops No. 6 and No. 7 in Redwood City and brought two troops from Menlo Park, and one each from Woodside, San Carlos and Belmont into this district, together with five Brownie packs.

The Palo Alto council, which had secured sponsors for this district in the beginning, expanded into the Peninsula District Council and helped foster scouting from Burlingame to Carmel. The immediate responsibility of supporting the work of the leaders in this district was assumed by the Redwood City Girl Scout Committee. Members of this group were Mrs. A. S. Kalenborn, who has been in turn chairman of the Redwood City Girl Scout committee, deputy commissioner of the Peninsula District Girl Scout Council, and is now commissioner of the Sequoia district council; Mrs. Willis Frost, Mrs. Archer Kincaid, Mrs. Viola Poole, Mrs. F. S. Woolridge and Mrs. J. Clyne.

Mrs. Sybil Gordon Newell, national field worker, was entertained by the committee in 1928. Her's was the first official recognition from headquarters.

In 1930 the Sequoia District Council was formed by consolidating the committees from Redwood City, Menlo Park, Woodside, and San Carlos. This group secured Miss Ruth Jaynes as local director. Miss Jaynes had had six years of Girl Scout experience, and a summer's training at Camp Edith Macy in New York before assuming her duties here in September, 1930. At the time the first council registered, there were four troops and two Brownie packs active. In the year following four troops were re-organized, two new ones formed and three new Brownie packs registered. This doubled the membership until more than 300 girls are now active in the program. In addition to the girls, there has been a growth in leadership and community sponsors. A leaders' association, with monthly meetings, has been organized enrolling 25 members, and a Brown Owls Association with 11 members holds monthly meetings. The Girl Scouts Council assisted by community and troop committees, maintains the Girl Scout office, retains Miss Jaynes to assist the leaders and supervise the standards of the program in this area. At the January council meeting, Mrs. Kalenborn read to the group an appeal from national social workers to maintain their work through these times especially as a palliative measure against increasing disillusion, discontent and attendant crimes.

In order to centralize the troop meetings, offer a place for special activities, and make homemaking possible, the committee has secured the use of a room back of Central School. Largely through the services of Mrs. Archer Kincaid, Mrs. Viola Poole, and Mrs. J. Clyne, the clubroom was furnished. The former committee has grown into the Sequoia District Council since the division from Palo Alto, but the present Redwood City committee has recently added further additions to the clubroom. Troop treasure boxes have been built, a door put through to utilize additional space, and make the upstairs kitchen accessible, a large wood box has been added, and troop bulletin boards are being prepared.

The present council is composed of Mrs. Kalenborn, commissioner; Mrs. Paul A. McCarthy, deputy commissioner; Mrs. E. H. Werthman, Menlo Park, secretary; Mrs. Clara B. Castelhun, Menlo Park, treasurer; Mrs. L. E. Collett, Menlo Park; Mrs. E. R. Burton, San Carlos; Mrs. G. J. Hildebrant, Mrs. E. L. Kilbourne, Mrs. C. F. White, Mrs. Lisle Winter, Mrs. L. G. Schelling, Mrs. M. M. Zobler, and Miss Maude B. Stilleson, who is a Harmon Award captain.

The council meets on the first Wednesday of each month at 3:30 o'clock in the girls social clubroom of Sequoia high school.

Members of the present committee are Mrs. M. M. Zobler, president; Mrs. R. E. Savage, Mrs. J. A. Snider, Mrs. George Wade, Mrs. Kilbourne, Mrs. D. L. Bogie, Mrs. Brian Pagen, Mrs. G. Chevassus, Mrs. H. Rudifell, Mrs. A. Mills, Mrs. Walter Sterling, Mrs. H. J. Phillips, Mrs. John McCarthy, Mrs. John Rhoda, Mrs. Edward M. Allen, Mrs. Hildebrant, Mrs. Clifton Woodhams, Mrs. W. E. La Dieu, Mrs. A. C. Dilg, Mrs. H. G. Werner, Mrs. R. W. Pindar and Mrs. F. L. Soule.

Committee meetings are held on the second Wednesday of the month at 10:30, mornings, in the Girl Scoutroom.

Bogie Stresses Training Need In Hi-Y Talk

Donald Bogie was the speaker at the sixth period section of the Sequoia Hi-Y Monday noon. He gave a talk on developing themselves to the fullest. He called attention to the great need of physical development for health, to the training of the mind so that the problems of life in these times can be brought closer to a solution, to readiness to serve and be of benefit to society, and above all develop the spiritual so that the other three phases of life can be rounded out for the highest good.

Party Given For James Cole On Birthday

The tenth birthday of James Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Cole, was made the occasion of a party Saturday afternoon when a dozen of his young friends were asked for luncheon at the Cole home on Avondale avenue. Later, Mr. Cole accompanied the guests to the theater where Thomas Kane was host to the group at a matinee party. Returning, the boys played games and had ice cream.

Invited were James Argo, Francis Wildman, Gordon Welsh, Logan Potter, Thomas Williams, Robert Snead, Theodore Andrews, Fred Simon, Jack Derry, Harvey Warne of San Francisco, and Theodore Cole.

REDWOOD CITY, Jan. 27.—

Arranges Party In Honor Of Mrs. Vasques

Twenty members of the Sunrise Circle at their last meeting arranged a surprise party for Mrs. Emily Vasques, and after the meeting proceeded to her home. They presented the honoree with a gift. Mrs. Ada Mengler, president of the Redwood City Women's Christian Temperance Union, gave a talk during the afternoon. Mrs. Clinton Gleason, president of the circle, was chairman.

Rev. Weigle Is Speaker At Dinner Meeting

The Rev. B. D. Weigle, former rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church here, who has accepted the parish in Los Altos, was the speaker at a dinner meeting of the teachers and officers of Sunday schools of three churches held recently in the Congregational church with 53 present.

The Rev. Mr. Weigle told of the value and scope of religious education.

The meeting was called with the object of forming a teachers' class in the pedagogy of religion, as outlined by the international board of Sunday schools. It will consist of six consecutive lessons, and will be open to all interested.

Mrs. Filsinger One Of Pi Phi Alumnae Hostesses

Mrs. C. C. Filsinger, a Pi Beta Phi, was one of the hostesses when the alumnae club of her sorority entertained the mothers of members Monday at the home of Mrs. F. R. Kerman in Palo Alto.

Mrs. George E. Davis sang some old French songs, accompanied by Mrs. M. L. Brett, and Mrs. R. H. Chambers gave a talk on the settlement school, which was founded and is maintained by the sorority for the mountain people of Tennessee. Some of the handicraft of the school was displayed.

Mrs. Wildman Ill At Son's Home

Mrs. F. M. Wildman, who arrived from Idaho in November to pass the winter with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Wildman, is ill at their home.

Rainbow Officers Installed In Local Assembly

Line officers of Redwood City Assembly, Order of Rainbow for Girls, were advanced one station Monday at an installation ceremony in Masonic Hall. Miss Myrtie Tripp, a past worthy advisor, assumed the duty of installing officer in the absence of Miss Marianne Tyler, who was not able to be present. Other installing officers, also past worthy advisors, were Miss Virginia Klassen, marshal; Miss Chastina Hartsough, chaplain; Miss Gertrude Gibson, recorder.

Miss Helen Mollison is the new worthy advisor, and Miss Martha Cummings, associate worthy advisor. Their assisting officers are Miss Mary Bell, charity; Miss Brita Seebohm, hope; Miss Leila Swett, faith; Miss Elise Carrington, confidential observer; Miss Isabel Sutcliffe, outer observer; Miss Louise Bendeich, chaplain; Miss Phyllis Blackington, drill leader.

The colors are represented by Miss Lucille Christ, red; Miss Dorothy Gould, orange; Miss Mildred Tripp, yellow; Miss Ruth Herbig, green; Miss Mabel Duncan, blue; Miss Charlotte Rider, indigo; Miss Margaret Feldscher, violet.

The recorder is Miss Elizabeth Kramer. Miss Josephine Gibson is the treasurer.

Hostess for last evening was Martha Brand. The soloists are Miss Ruth Stevens and Arthur Lampkin. Mrs. Herman J. Phillips led the choir, and Mrs. Velma Van Duyn was organist.

Members of Redwood chaper, Order of De Molay, acted as escort for the flag ceremonial, and Fred Musso Jr., recently installed master councilor of that order, was given a place of honor among the officers.

Mrs. William J. Dusel continues as mother advisor of the Rainbow girls.

The old home of the St. Louis Republic, first occupied in 1870, has been razed to make an automobile parking lot.

Learns Of Wedding Of Miss Brown In Pasadena

Word has been received by Mrs. I. C. Drathman of the wedding of Miss Louise K. Brown and George C. Mitchell which took place in Pasadena Saturday.

The bride was music supervisor of San Mateo county under Pansy Jewett Abbott for two years.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell will make their home in the south.

Mrs. Fogarty Hostess To Bridge Club

Mrs. Margaret Fogarty was hostess to the members of her bridge club recently, for cards and supper. Her guests were Mrs. Ernest Locatelli, Mrs. Claire Roberts, Mrs. Dorothy Cerqui, Miss Ruth Kirste, Miss Tillie Deluchi, Miss Margaret Rice, and Miss Constance Drathman.

Woodside

The Woodside Parent-Teacher Association will celebrate next Thursday the anniversary of its birthday under the title of "Founder's Day." There will be special exercises at the school auditorium including music under the direction of Mrs. Helen Huebner, the school music director, and a George Washington play presented by the pupils under the coaching of Miss Alice Smith, one of the cadet teachers at the school. Refreshments will be served. A full attendance of the membership is hoped for.

The Woodside Fire Department answered a call to the Alpine grade on Tuesday to find Dan Nahmens' car a smouldering wreck at the foot of a bank twenty feet below the road. The car had skidded over the bank on a slippery turn and, although it had landed right side up, it burst into flame. Nahmens escaped with slight injuries.

The local registration deputies appointed by the county clerk have made a thorough canvas of Woodside precinct. One would have to go through the district with a fine tooth comb to find a qualified voter whose name is not on the new great register. When election day comes, no one here will be able to spring the old alibi of not being on the register.

Leland John is temporarily taking the place of Assistant Fire Chief John Volpiano, who is convalescing from a serious illness at the Palo Alto Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Selah Chamberlain and family will close their home here on February first and spend the rest of the winter season at their home in San Francisco.

Mrs. Roy N. Bishop is visiting relatives in Bermuda but is planning to return to her home here shortly. Mr. Bishop, who has been touring in the East with Mrs. Bishop, returned to San Francisco on Sunday.

Miss Margaret Zane and Miss Persis Holden, who have been enjoying the winter sports at the Hotel Ahwahnee in Yosemite, returned to their homes in Woodside on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fay gave a dinner party last Saturday evening in honor of Rev. Father J. P. Cavanagh of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Church, who has just been appointed chaplain of the new Matson liner, the S. S. Mariposa.

Rev. Benjamin St. John of the Woodside Church attended the anniversary exercises of the Pacific School of Religion at Berkeley last week.

Mrs. Virginia Miller and her son, Donald, have been visiting with Mrs. Miller's grandmother, Mrs. Rebecca Bogle.

Mr. and Mrs. Welbanks of Woodside Glens have taken an apartment in Redwood City and will lease their home here for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Durham have returned to Woodside after an absence of a month spent visiting relatives at Camino.

"There is gold in them thar hills." You can see the outcroppings in every direction and in quantity that would have driven the old prospectors crazy. It is not the kind of gold that can be minted but it shines as brilliantly in the sunlight as all the twenty dollar gold pieces ever turned out of the San Francisco mint. There are so many varieties of acacia that the bloom beginning with the baileyana in January is found persisting through one variety after another into the late months of the fall. There are several commercial plantings in Woodside that furnish early bloom to the florists of the city.

The newly married housewife entered Chamberlain's store Monday morning to give her first order. George Holden, a clever employe who knew how to interpret orders, was fortunately on hand to wait on her.

"I want twenty pounds of paralyzed sugar," she began with a business-like air.

"Yes'm. Anything else?"

"Two tins of condemmed milk."

George set down pulverized sugar and condensed milk.

"Anything more, Ma'am?"

"A bag of fresh salt, and be sure it's fresh."

"Yes'm. What next?"

"A pound of desecrated codfish."

He wrote glibly, "desiccated cod."

"Nothing more, ma'am? We have some nice horse-radish just in."

"No," she said, "it would be of no use to us; we don't keep a horse."

OLSEN MOVED TO PALO ALTO

O. Olsen, for many years the advertising manager of the Times-Gazette and now one of the owners of the Palo Alto News, has moved from Redwood City to Mayfield, having just completed the erection of a cozy home there. The Olsen home here has been leased.

Will Of Burlingame Man Is Filed

Mrs. Mary Sparkes, 737 Newshattel street, Burlingame, has on file with County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman the will of her late husband, Aylett Sparkes, who died in Burlingame January 17, 1931.

Sparkes' estate will not exceed $15,000, the petition states.

NINE MEMBERS MUST COMPRISE CORONER'S JURY

According to the new law enacted by the last legislature, a coroner's jury must now comprise nine persons instead of six as heretofore. Constable Grill, the efficient officer, must bestir himself in securing the three extra jurors and this is sometimes a task, for busy business men are loath to leave their labors to serve on a jury without compensation. There is a movement on foot to ask the next legislature to allow a compensation of one dollar for each member serving on such juries.

LIBRARY BOND VOTE UP FOR DISCUSSION

Council Meets With Planners; Taxi Permit Denied

The possibility of putting a library bond issue on the coming municipal election ballots was discussed at a meeting of the city council Monday night.

Dr. Norris C. Cummings, chairman of the Redwood City public library board, was spokesman for the institution. That the old building has long been overcrowded due to the phenomenal increase in the use of the library is a subject of common knowledge.

It is thought that $50,000 may be the sum sought, although nothing definite was done last night. The matter was continued for a week.

Application of T. J. Henderson for a taxicab license was denied. Henderson operates a stage line between the depot and Emerald Lake. Taxi men of the city objected on the ground that adequate service was now being rendered.

The matter of a suggested amendment to the existing taxi ordinance, which would allow Henderson to deliver passengers to any designated point in the city from outside territory was laid over. Attorney J. J. Bullock, counsel for the taxi men, was unable to attend the council meeting.

The council met jointly with the county planning commission and the city planners. Hugh Pomeroy, adviser to the county commission, spoke on the subject of the segregation of through and local traffic on the Bayshore highway. This principle has been adopted by the county planners, and it was indicated that the city commission would take similar action.

An application for permission to establish a home school for children on Edgewood road was denied, as the council deemed the location was strictly residential.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK IN APRIL

California's 13th annual observance of Public Schools Week will be held this year during the week of April 25, according to the announcement made by Robert B. Gaylord, grand master of Masons of California. The week was originally instituted to call the attention of the public to the critical condition in the schools because of the shortage of teaching staffs due to war service and to bring the teaching personnel of the state to as near normal as possible.

While the week is fixed annually by proclamation of the grand master of Masons it has become recognized as one of the major civic events of the year, participated in by chambers of commerce, parent-teacher organizations, the American Legion, the Eastern Star, service clubs, civic and official generally and announced by formal decrees through the mayors represented in the League of California Municipalities.

Last year a total of 600 meetings were held in school auditoriums over the state, many being featured by the work of students.

The Hunger Marches

The one outstanding fact about the two so-called "hunger marches" which have been precipitated upon Washington this winter that the country should not fail to note is that both of them had their genesis in politics and not in unemployment.

The first expedition was frankly avowed to be communistic in its inspiration, conduct and purpose, designed to create sentiment against the Government of the United States. The second was inspired by political antagonism to President Hoover, led by men conspicuous in political circles for their opposition to him, and deliberately planned to arouse public sentiment against him.

That the purpose behind both of these expeditions was politcal rather than economic any child must know. The marchers brought no information to Washington which was not already common property there as it is over the country generally. The petitions for relief which they presented to congress and to the president could have been handled just as effectively through the mails. There was absolutely no point to be made by bringing the several thousand men to the national capital—except a political point.

The manner in which the marches were made in itself contradicts the pretended purpose behind them. Both armies came in automobile and auto trucks. Both brought brass bands with them. In the case of the last army a very considerable part of its membership did not join in the parade to the capitol which was supposed to be the chief function in which they should engage, but scattered about the city taking in the sights like any tourists. One of the men who collapsed, not from hunger but from nervous excitement, and was taken to a hospital, was found wearing a diamond ring and having $1,000 in currency upon his person. Of course this exceptional case does not prove that all the marchers were supplied with funds. It is obvious, however, that a cavalcade of 2,200 motor vehicles with hired drivers could not be brought together for a journey of 1,000 miles by men who were wholly indigent. There was not only organization behind the enterprise, but a very considerable amount of money, which certainly would have been better expended relieving families of those who needed relief than in sending some thousands of men on an utterly fruitless journey.

Things have come to a sorry pass when men are willing to resort to "playing politics with human misery" in an effort to discredit the president of the United States in order to win a party victory.

UP AND DOWN THE STATE

WOMEN WANT TO BE JURORS

Strange as it may seem, an appeal in the name of womankind has been made to the United States Supreme Court to break down the barriers which in certain backward states save women from the burden and annoyance of jury duty.

Equally strange is the fact that the test case, which comes from Massachusetts, arises from a woman's conviction on the charge of bootlegging. Her counsel raises the question that as the panel was composed entirely of men, as it always is in Massachusetts, she did not have the trial by a "jury of her peers" to which she was entiled.

The National Woman's Party has joined the case with characteristic zeal for the opening to women of all official doors that men may enter. The constitutional phases of the case are not so interesting as the social aspects.

Men's traditional attitude is that jury service is a burden for those who have other demands on their time. States which have opened the jury box to women have found them as a rule much more willing than their men folk.

It may be that women have more time or think they have, which is the same in effect. At any rate, women jurors have surprised the skeptical by their conscientiousness and their power to resist emotional appeal.

Women make good jurors, but why they should fight for the privilege is a little beyond the comprehension of the average man. —San Francisco Chronicle.

BENEFITS IN OLYMPIC GAMES

It would not be telling the whole truth to assert that Los Angeles is to be the scene of the Olympic Games in 1932. More properly, it should be said that the Los Angeles area is having the great Tenth Olympiad in the year that has just begun. This city will share largely in the thrills and in the benefits which will be derived from these renowned international athletic classics.

Olympiad headquarters in Los Angeles has convincing evidence that the forthcoming meet will be attended largely and that the array of athletic talent will be formidable indeed. Besides the big retinue of trainers and servants who come with each delegation of athletes, there will be many thousands of visitors from all over the civilized world. These, of course, will spend much here, in the aggregate. So, viewed from the standpoint of material gains, this county and this Southland will reap richly.

But there is a bigger and broader conception of this superlative athletic meet, and this should be kept at the forefront here: The Olympic Games here will thrill vast multitudes of spectators; and the reflex will be a better appreciation of clean, manly sports. The influence upon the young should be most wholesome. The effect of the games this year should be felt for many years to come in inspiring the young of California to strive for greater things in athletics.

California is ideally situated to become a modern Greece in the matter of athletic development of its youth—to become what was Greece of the glorious days of ancient years. It is no trivial matter to promote the symmetrical development of the human organism — the triune evolution of body, mind and soul into a loftier human species. The Olympic Games shed this superb influence throughout the world. Particularly here in California, where the games are to be held, the influence should be inspiring, elevating and tremendously useful to the commonwealth.—The Pasadena Star-News.

GENERALS SHOW THEIR PALMS

Mexican news merely percolates into world consciousness, including our own. The recent report from Mexico City about the cabinet changes may have large significance.

The chief fact seems to be that Calles, who tells Rubio what to do, has been in his turn told something by the army. Four generals go back into the cabinet, from which, not so long ago, generals were excluded.

In fact Calles, as chief citizen of Mexico, has been showing fluctuations of temperament over the army for many years. Very much as a narcotic addict shows alternations of rebellion and of submission to the lures of opium. Calles knows that army domination is bad for his country, and protests his adhesion to civilian control. But every so often he finds that he must fly back to the army for protection.

Why generals in the cabinet? Because in Mexico the cabinet is the sacred circle within which are confined the jobs that can produce those financial opportunities that the Latin American statesman considers the opportunities of office. For in Mexico grafting is a habit; the cabinet is the field of action; and appointment to the cabinet opens the door of opportunity. Calles has a very sincere desire to free his nation from the evils of militarism. But he cannot escape the need on critical occasion of bribery by position.—Fresno Republican.

AFTER THE CARELESS

Checking up on last year, Los Angeles, which has many model traffic regulations, finds that more than five hundred lives were lost in accidents on the streets. A result is a new campaign against the careless and drunken drivers with particular attention to be given to the latter.

Traffic is too complicated to permit driving by those not in possession of their faculties, the southern city has decided, and drunken driving may be stopped if steps are taken to make it certain that those who are arrested for the offense are deprived of their driving privilege.

The new campaign may mean much or little. Last year, after a recapitulation of the accidents for 12 months, an announcement was made which was in every way similar to that of this week—Oakland Tribune.

A students' aid department of an Oakland school re-soles 100 pairs of shoes a week, making the soles from old automobile tires.

POP'S COLUMN

FROM the outside the house appeared to be uninhabited. It was a low structure of one story, but it was long, very long. In fact, as I stood looking at it in the half light of a nascent moon, I could scarcely distinguish the outline of either end of the building. There appeared to be many doors and windows irregularly spaced along the front of the ancient pile. Weeds and rank grass and brambly shrubs grew riotously all around, and it was evident that no care or attention had been given the place in a long time. I knocked on the door with my knuckles, as I could see no bell or knocker. There was no response. I looked about and saw a piece of iron pipe lying near the door. I picked that up and slammed it against the old door with all my might. The door split from top to bottom, and splinters flew far and wide. I kicked down what was left standing of the door, and stepped over the pieces into a dark room, or hallway. "What ho! Within there!" I cried. A gale of echoing noises was the only reply. I had a chocolate bar in my inside vest pocket. I got that out and started unwrapping the tinfoil covering. Then it occurred to me that I was wasting time; so I popped the whole mess into my mouth, tinfoil and all, and started chewing on it. Funny thing, though: as I chewed, my jaws got out of control and began chopping up and down at a tremendous rate, and when I would have stopped chewing I couldn't; the jaws kept right on champing, and the mess inside my mouth began to expand frightfully. I tried to void it from my mouth but I couldn't stop my jaws long enough to accomplish that. Then a little tinkling light appeared far back in the room, or hall, in which I was standing, and soon a queer little old man came within my vision, carrying a long red candle, upside down. The flame ran up the sides of the candle and burned his fingers, and he was constantly changing the candle from one hand to the other and sticking the latest-burned-fingers into his mouth. "Why not hold the candle upright?" I said to him. "We Mugginses never hold a candle that way," he replied. "We always hold them this-a-way, no matter how much they burn us," he added. "Are you related to the Mugginses that have three blind mules and a wheelbarrow at the end of Drury Lane?" I asked him. "Oh, no," said the little feller, as he changed hands on the candle, and turned three double back flip-flops quicker than it takes to tell it. "Our family is all flip-floppers," he said. "Them Mugginses you speak of are all hoop dancers." "What's a hoop dancer?" I asked him. "What isn't?" he replied. And just then another little old man came running out of the darkness, grabbed hold of one of the first little old man's legs and started running with it. The leg stretched like rubber. The first little old man didn't seem to mind at all. The other little old feller kept running around and around the first little old feller with that leg, wrapping it around and around the old feller until he was a great round ball of rubber leg, but he kept the candle in his hand upside down. When he was a ball as large around as a very large medicine ball, the second feller stopped winding the leg around him, and ran somewhere and came back with a baseball bat, which he thrust into my hands, saying, "Line it out now, Bully—a home run—pile into it!" And he jumped up and down and clapped his hands together, and I set myself and drew back the baseball bat and hit the round ball of man and rubber leg an awful wallop; and he, or it, or they; flew up and up, and out through the roof of the place, and on and on into the sky, higher and higher. "That gives you 480," the second little man said to me, or yelled at me, for he was bouncing around and jumping about and screeching frightfully. "Gives me 480 what?" said I. "Percentage, percentage, percentage!" the little feller yelled, and he reached down and picked up his own left foot and trust it into his enormous mouth and bit off every one of the five toes, one at a time; and as he bit off each toe, he impelled it from his mouth just as a capsule is impelled from a pneumatic tube, and the toes all struck the wall just over my head, and stuck there by the sharp nails on the ends of them. When all five toes were stuck there I looked and saw that they made the figures "480," quoted just like that. I wasn't surprised, although I know now that it was a singular thing in spite of the fact the toes were plural; but on the whole a very unusual procedure. "Was your father burned as a heretic?" said I. "No, was yours?" he countered. I never saw such a person to always be answering a question by asking another, and so I told the little old feller. "Oh, you'll get used to it when Al Smith is king!" he said. But he had no sooner uttered the words than a mighty jangling and rattling and smashing and banging of, it seemed like, a carload of scrap iron and old brass cow bells and 47 riveting machines all going at once. And right in the midst of the awful racket, a great burning light suddenly flashed into my eyes, and staggered me with its brilliance, and my wife—my own lawful wife—said: "For mercy's sake, wake up and shut off that alarm clock! You'll have everybody in the block wide awake!"

METEORIC ETHAN ALLEN

One hundred and ninety-five years ago, on January 10, was a man whose name is bound to come up in this year of our national remembrance of George Washington, when all who had a part in his military victories are destined to share in his glory. This man was Ethan Allen, known to every school-child in the country because he added to Revolutionary history at least one immortal deed and one immortal saying.

Ethan Allen, we are informed by the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, was born in 1737, in Litchfield, Conn., only five years after George Washington himself first saw the light of day. When he was in his early thirties, Allen moved to Bennington, in what is now Vermont but was then disputed ground. Known as the "New Hampshire Grants," that territory was claimed by New York, but the people within it were determined to be citizens neither of New York nor New Hampshire but to be a state by themselves. They even formed a military body to enforce their determination.

Ethan Allen was made colonel and commanding officer of these "Green Mountain Boys" as they called themselves, but before they got very far with their private war, the Revolution broke out, and Ethan Allen dropped the cause of his particular colony to embrace the cause of all the colonies. Here began his military career, a short one, as it proved, but one long enough to include an outstanding feat that indirectly contributed to Washington's taking of Boston and that fixed the name of Ethan Allen forever in the minds of his countrymen.

Wanted Tinconderoga

As soon as he heard of the battles of Lexington and Concord, Ethan Allen conceived the idea of capturing Ticonderoga, a strong fort on Lake Champlain held by the British and an important stronghold of British power in the colonies. On his own initiative Allen marched his mountaineer regiment to the attack. On his way, incidentally, he was joined by Benedict Arnold, who held a more official military commission granted by the Committee of Safety. Arnold joined as a volunteer, nevertheless, and left the command to Allen.

On reaching the shore of Champlain, opposite Ticonderoga, Allen found to his chagrin that boats were lacking to transport his entire regiment. Not one whit daunted, he carried over 83 men, leaving the others on the Vermont shore, and using the darkness of night to cloak his maneuver. Day was dawning as he drew up his little force for the assault, and no time was to be lost. At the same time he realized the desperate nature of the work before him with merely a handful of men, and generously offered to leave behind any man who cared to withdraw. Not a man accepted the offer. The 83 moved on the fort.

The sentry they surprised at the gate is said to have aimed point-blank at Allen, but fortunately the gun missed fire. Allen's loyal men would have made short work of the sentry instead, but Allen was too humane and too shrewd for that. He promised the sentry his life on condition of his leading them straight to the quarters of his commanding officer. There they found De la Place taken by surprise and not fully dressed, but not so surprised but that, when Allen demanded his surrender, he could demand in return by what authority Allen acted.

As Allen possessed no official authority from the colonial powers, he himself may have been caught by surprise. But again nothing daunted him and he thundered the immortal answer, "In the name of the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." Evidently that was authority enough for De la Place, for he turned over the fort to the Americans without further ado.

Blow to British

This stroke, which Ethan Allen brought off less than a month after the encounter at Lexington, was another blow to British prestige. Directly, it removed a British threat from what was then the American rear, and indirectly it brought to Washington's aid the cannon and ammunition he needed in his siege of Boston. Later that year, Col. (afterward General) Knox stripped Ticonderoga of its guns and powder and performed the remarkable feat of hauling this weight of 240,000 pounds over the mountains of Vermont to Washington's army.

The easy victory at Ticonderoga convinced Allen that the whole of Canada might be taken or won over to the American side, and he laid before Congress an ambitious plan to this effect. Receiving no encouragement, he again acted on his own initiative and moved on Montreal. But promised reinforcements failed to arrive and Allen was forced to surrender and yield to capture.

Taken a prisoner to England, Allen was there offered many temptations to desert his countrymen and adopt the British flag. He scorned them all and was finally exchanged. No sooner had he reached America than he went to meet Washington, then at Valley Forge. The Commander-in-Chief greatly admired the bold Vermonter and wrote of him. "There is something original in him that commands attention." But though Allen volunteered his services to Congress in any capacity, he was unable to obtain a command, and thereafter his military activities were limited to skirmishes in his own Vermont. Nevertheless his deeds for his country were enough to have gained him Washington's admiration and to place the name of Ethan Allen immortally on America's roll of honor.

Books

By WARE TORREY

A telescope once more is held against the past, so that events and persons who have become history may be seen in vivid detail, in Ford Madox Ford's new book, "Return to Yesterday."

Ford Madox Ford, intimate friend of statesmen, writers and persons of international reputation in other fields has a strong box of reminiscences into which to dip.

He breakfasts with Galsworthy and is sent to Coventry by May Sinclair. He collaborates with Conrad, provides stories for the entertainment of Edward VII, rescues Oscar Wilde's ebony cane, and induces Henry James, Stephen Crane and W. H. Hudson to drink at St. Leonard's Well "from the hollows of their hands."

"Return to Yesterday" is a pleasing combination of data and characterizations of well known people, and light and amusing incidents.

American life of a short distance behind us is given interesting touches. Gladstone and Lloyd George receive descriptive strokes on one page, and the Russian secret police is discussed on another.

For range of material, for intimate knowledge of his subjects, and for polished style, "Return to Yesterday" takes high place.

Humor in the Tropics

A flaboring of gentle but very able humor, clear characterization, and a fluent plot are offered with "Mr. Darby," by Martin Armstrong.

Mr. Darby, an unassuming clerk with a secret yen for adventure suddenly inherits a fortune. After various experiments in spending money, he engages a valet, Punnett, and sets sail for Australia and the tropics.

Not the least part of the expedition is the leaving of his wife, Sarah, at home. Mr. Darby and Punnett become marooned upon the Mandratic peninsula.

A surfeit of adventure is provided for Mr. Darby when he becomes king of the savages, and stirring events only cease with the unexpected and dramatic intervention of Sarah.

Facts About Russia

Solid facts about Russia, substantiated by documents, statistics and the sworn statements of Russian refugees are presented by the Duchess of Atholl, M. P., in "Conscription of a People."

Among her findings, Katharine Atholl states that the five-year plan depends largely on foreign credits and foreign purchases, and offers as her advice that government credits should cease, the sale to Russia of armaments or machinery for their manufacture should be prohibited, and Soviet imports should be limited.

John Gibbons has published a book of light and bright comment, "Afoot in Italy."

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931, C. M. Co.

The Vale of Aragon

By Fred McLaughlin

Copyrighted by Bobb-Merrill Co. WNU Service

The soldier was up again. I took his glancing blow upon the shoulder and gave him all I had with one straight right, then I turned to face the last adversary, Francisco, but his long arm came down swiftly, and a pistol in his hand struck my unprotected head. The trees and the hanging lamp and the moon disappeared in a crimson sea. I groped blindly, and found friendly hands that let me down gently to the flagstones.

CHAPTER II
The Santa Lucrecia

I lived in a land of dreams, of grotesque fancies, where formless figures moved in silent aimlessness through half-transparent fog. I heard the vaguest echo of a voice, the fragment of a song, the shuffling of footsteps. Morning sunlight, streaming through a narrow, slatted port-hole, stenciled a flaming pattern on the wall above my head. I was in a cabin of a ship, for I saw the heavy beams that held the floor of the afterdeck, and I heard the gentle creak of blocks. I felt a painful throbbing in my head and, raising a hand, touched a bandage.

A figure moved in the cabin, approached and leaned over me. About the face so near my own there was a sort of unreal malformation. One of the eyes was closed, the liver-colored nose was larger by far than any nose should be, and a crooked grin pulled the features all awry.

"Is that a real face," I asked, "or have you, too, just returned from a bal masque?"

Whereupon the face swore a bitter Spanish oath, and I knew the owner of it for the soldier. Now the tall form of Francisco bent over me. "Then you didn't shoot me in the garden of the good Diego, nor drop me in the river?"

Smiling, he shook his head. "No; however, Manuel was for slipping a knife between your ribs."

"Is Manuel he of the dark face that resembles a bad dream?"

"Yes, Senor." He chuckled. "His face is even worse now—if such could be." He thought a moment. "You fight, Senor, as though you love to fight."

"Not at all; though sometimes, it is true that the blood of my father speaks to me."

"If Venezuela had a thousand men like you, Senor," he said, and the flame of the patriot burned in his eyes, "she would win her independence out of hand." I found nothing to say to this and he went on, deep anxiety in his eyes: "In your unconsciousness, Senor, you spoke often to 'Her Majesty,' who seems to possess shining black curls and purple moonlight in her eyes. Can we have made so vast a blunder?"

Now, in spite of the torture of my wounded head, I laughed—and groaned, and laughed again. "The majesty, Senor, of the lady of my dreams, lies only in her beauty; I saw her coming from a bal masque and she was garbed as a queen. You have taken no prince incognito—only an American who has spent one mad night." I knew that they would have killed me after our fight if they had intended to kill me at all, so I assumed that, for the present at least, I was safe. "Where do we go, Francisco, and what, may I ask, are your plans concerning me?"

"We go to La Guarira," said Francisco solemnly, "and there, God willing, we join forces with Simon Bolivar, who will be, some day, the savior of his country, just as your own George Washington was."

"A thing," said I, "which I hope will come to pass, for the western world should be free of Spain, and will be, some day, I am sure. That, however, interests me less at this moment than my safe return to New Orleans, where my father and mother will be waiting for me."

"You think, then," Francisco urged, "that, for certain compensation, you could add to the experiences of your life by joining—?"

"Compensation? My father, Senor, is the richest man in the lower valley. What can a campaign in Venezuela add to my life? I have spent two years with Gen. Andrew Jackson."

"Yet we cannot set you free, Senor, you know too much."

"You cannot hold me."

Francisco smiled. "We have arranged it. You are mad; a violent insanity has possessed you, and the good Doctor Santini, whom, in one of your fits of madness, you have already attacked, must attend you at all times. We are taking you to your home near Caracas."

"You have told the captain all that?"

"Assuredly; it was gentler by far than dropping you into the river, for our plans must not go astray."

"Bah!" I cried. "Suppose I get word to the captain that the coils of tobacco conceal firearms, that the kegs of tobacco are powder, that the corn contains bullets, and that machetes may be found in the pork?"

Francisco laughed softly, while Santini swore out of the side of his mouth. "If you managed to get such word to Captain Alvarez, Senor, and he should look and find nothing, he will be assured that you are mad; if he should find contraband he would have no proof against us, for shipment has been made in proper form from Diego Martinez to another merchant in Caracas. If the captain questions our innocence, and even becomes so suspicious as to confine us, pending examination at Caracas, there is yet Manuel and the mixed crew of this ship. We cannot do things by halves. Only Spanish ships may trade with Venezuela, therefore we put them to our use."

I marveled at the daring of the thing, and marveling, I was filled with admiration. "Simon Bolivar must depend upon you greatly, Senor," I said.

Francisco bowed. "He has offered me that signal honor, and you may rest assured that nothing shall swerve me from my service to him and, through him, my service to Venezuela. One life, Senor, or a score of lives, shall not stand in my way. We brought you alive to this ship instead of killing you as we should have done because I harbored a faint hope that a man of your courage might see his way clear to aid us, but as you cannot offer service I shall see to it that you do not interfere."

"I think, of the two of us, Francisco, the charge of madness should not be laid against me!"

The day went by, slowly enough, while the Santa Lucrecia skimmed the quiet waters of the gulf, and my head healed, and the face of Santini became less like that of a gargoyle.

We touched at Vera Cruz, where a letter I had written to my father and mother was posted, a letter telling them that I had gone to Venezuela with friends, and would return to New Orleans at a later date. This, I knew, would relieve their worry over my non-arrival from France.

At Coatzacoalcos, in the tranquil harbor of which we spent a night, the wily Francisco offered me a chance to escape, but, having experienced a change of heart, I refused to take advantage of it, for I had heard a voice in the night—a voice as clear and as pure as the note of a mocking bird. It brought back to me remembrance of all the mad things of that wild New Orleans night. That voice had transformed the Santa Lucrecia from a prison ship into a paradise.

As the days and nights went by I listened for her footsteps on the afterdeck; I pictured again and again the exquisite face in its frame of dark curls, the soft curve of her cheek, the sweetly pointed chin, and I lost myself in the immeasurable depths of eyes that could change to purple the silver glory of moonlight.

One night I heard her voice lifted in an old French song that I knew and loved, and one that my mother used to sing.

Francisco and Santini were out. I tried the door and found, to my great surprise, that it was unsecured, for they had been in the habit of locking me in. I slipped out, my heart thudding in my throat, and seeking the protecting shadow of the mizzenmast, crouched, listened, looking.

Scarce thirty feet away she stood beside the starboard after-rail, a golden-tan mantilla over her hair and across her slim shoulders. Her face was raised toward the stars, and the music that came from her lips was such as I had always imagined the angels might produce.

A slim boy, Polito, was near her, and on her right stood the massive figure that I had last seen dressed as Charles V. One of his arms was strapped againt his side. His rasping voice broke into the middle of the melody: "Why do you sing in French, Carisima; is not the Spanish language sufficient?"

"No one language, 'Dolfo, is sufficient for a night like this. Every language has it own love songs, never does a translation quite suffice."

I found myself laughing softly in the gloom. She would sing a love song in French to her Spanish lover! Even Polito was laughing now. "Adolfo," he said in gentle raillery, "console thyself that she does not sing in English, which might bring to her mind the moon-madness of that all Americano with the fair hair and the clever wrist."

Adolfo uttered something in his beard that must have been an oath, for her voice was gently chiding: "Poor 'Dolfo, he has had an evil time, and we should be good to him during this, his first hour on the deck. I think the Americano must have had a touch of the moon, which does amazing things to us. I suppose he is laughing, somewhere, over the madness of that night."

"Unless," said De Fuentes lamely "there have been other nights."

Now I wanted to deny that; I wanted to tell her that her image had filled my dreams. I had a wild desire to cast myself at her feet and to cry my love aloud to the world, yet I knew that such an act of insanity would only add confirmation to Francisco's charge of madness against me.

While I waited, hot and cold by turns, listening to her voice and devouring her with eager eyes, two figures came along the rail and stopped. The taller one, Francisco, bowed, and Adolfo jerked his heavy body awkwardly. When she spoke to Francisco and Santini there was an easy frankness in her manner, as though she had been in the habit of talking with them often.

"That mysterious patient of yours, Dr. Villard," she said, "has filled me with a consuming curiosity; is it forbidden that I satisfy it?"

Santini laughed uneasily, and Francisco answered her: "It has been ordered, Senorita, that our patient be left in the strictest privacy. His people in Caracas will hold us—"

Now De Fuentes laughed, laughed harshly, laughed long and loud, a huge guffaw that beat out over the quiet sea. "Caracas," he cried, "how will you two reach Caracas?"

"Ah, Adolfo," she said, "what do you mean; has the close confinement, and the pain of your wound—?"

"No," Adolfo yelled, "a hundred noes!" He went off into another paroxysm of unholy glee, in which Ifervently hoped he might expire of apoplexy, but he survived. "Doctor Villard," he jeered, "Doctor Villard indeed! He is Santini, the soldier—and Bolivar is going to lose a patriot! And as for you, Francisco Perez, there will be a rope—"

Francisco emitted a shrill whistle, and figures, running swiftly, emerged from the gloom. I dashed toward the milling group, caught sight of Santini, with a knife upraised, and threw myself upon him. The evil blade clattered to the deck and the soldier turned to face me. He rasped a bitter oath, swinging his fists the while, which crashed against the side of my head and filled the heavens with shooting stars. Before Santini could strike again, the lithe form of Polito intervened. He threw his slim body like a lance at the soldier's throat and the two went down, a grotesque figure of writhing arms and legs.

Now I saw the dark Manuel, a pistol in his hand and his mouth open in an expectant grin. Before he could raise the weapon I closed his mouth with a driving first, behind which I had put all the power of my muscles.

With the sailors pressing around us I turned to find Francisco. There was no enmity in his eyes, and he made no move to attack me. "Francisco," I said in one of those sudden, unaccountable hushes that every battle, large or small, will develop, "you have committed a grave blunder."

Trembling hands caught my arm and whirled me around. The Senorita Lamartina raised on tiptoe, and her pale face was less than eight inches from my eyes.

"Your—Your Majesty," I faltered.

"Mother of G—d," she whispered, "the moon-wraith!"

A western sun filled the upper half of my tiny cubicle with a lurid glow, a still, oppressive heat—presaging a storm—bore upon me; bonds that cut me cruelly held my arms and legs, and black thoughts of injustice filled my brain.

I had fought to save him—and her—and I had come to this prison cell. Was this the Spaniard's idea of gratitude; could there be in the heart of Adolfo de Fuentes so perverted a sense of right and wrong, in his plan of life so poor a picture of sportsmanship? Ah, I was to learn many things about the Spaniards.

I wondered what had become of Manuel; I wondered what they had done to Francisco and Santini, for I remembered that Spanish justice was swift.

But one ray of light showed in the gloom of my despair. Riding upon that fervent whisper of the "moon-wraith!" had come, so I believed, a definite note of joy. . . .

I heard the grating of a key in the padlock, and the rattle of a chain. The door opened and two armed sailors came in. They loosed my bonds and I stood up, moving my arms and legs so that the numbness passed away. The sailors eased out in single file and stationed themselves in the channel, guns ready for any attempt that I might make to escape.

I stood wondering, eyes upon the uneven floor, until the consciousness of a presence came to me. I was afraid to raise my eyes until I heard her voice—and there has never been another voice like hers, never another face so exquisite, nor a form so graciously fashioned.

"Will the Senor Moon-wraith—?"

Now a palsy seized me. I was afraid—afraid that I was dreaming. I heard her light step as she crossed the narrow way, and I felt the touch of a tentative hand upon my arm. I raised my eyes and drank deep of the beauty of her face.

"Senorita," I said, "ah, Senorita, you have come thus to my poor prison."

She turned her head and glanced over her shoulder, where in the gloom of the channel, dim outlines of the sailor guards were visible. "Monsieur, you know the French?"

"Perfectly," I said; "it is my mother tongue."

"Your mother tongue? I thought you were Americano."

"Yes; though my mother is French."

Standing close to me she raised her face toward the glow of the tiny porthole. "Will you tell me, Monsieur, who you are?"

Tell her? I would tell her anything, anything to hold her here, to give me further time to fill my eyes with her loveliness and my soul with the joy of her presence. "My name is Loren."

"Loren," she repeated, accenting—as she should have done—the last syllable, "Loren—what?"

"Loren Garde, the good Norse name that my father, a youth just out of his teens, brought to New Orleans after his campaign under the brilliant General, Nathaniel Greene. With faith in himself and the new nation to which he had offered valiant service, he has managed by hard work and careful saving and investment to gather vast acreage of Mississippi valley lands."

"If your father is wealthy, then why—in the name of all the saints, Monsieur—did you thus throw away your life by serving that arch-rebel and conspirator, Simon Bolivar?"

Now a bit of Francisco's patriotism touched me, so that I refrained, for the moment, from telling her that I had spurned the offer of the revolutionists. "The rebel of today, Your Majesty, may be tomorrow's liberator. Do you not know that, already, they are calling this Bolivar the Washington of South America?"

She bowed her head, and the slim shoulders drooped. "I know, Monsieur, only that it touches me—here." She pressed her hands over her heart. "I—I do not understand."

"What have they done to Francisco Perez and Santini, the soldier?"

"We are approaching the shores of Venezuela," she said, "and tomorrow, as the sun rises—" She raised her hands and let them fall in a gesture of hopelessness "I have tried to save them . . . I do not understand Adolfo; in some things he is hard—hard!"

Plans Announced for New Eight Club Baseball Loop

Invitation to join in a reorganized California State Baseball League hhave been received by Ed Zwierlein, manager of the Palo Alto Black Sox. The offer was extended in a letter written by Al Erle, president of the circuit.

Others Invited

Similar invitations were dispatched to the managers of baseball clubs in the towns of Vallejo, Santa Cruz, Gilroy, San Mateo, San Jose, Hollister and Watsonville. Those teams will make up the new league, if plans of Erle and his associates mature. Details of reorganization of the California State Baseball League "under new and better conditions" will be ironed out at a meeting to be held next Sunday in San Jose.

The action followed the decision of the Pacific Coast League not to sponsor a so-called "State League," which would have brought several teams of the California State League under its banner. The contemplated reorganization of the league refuses franchises to the Stockton, Pacific Commonwealth and Lodi teams, members of the loop since its organization some years ago. From the old guard, teams of San Jose, Santa Cruz, and San Mateo would be retained as a nucleus for the new league.

Reopen Plan

Reorganization of the state league was attempted last year and fell through after invitations extended to Palo Alto, Watsonville, Half Moon Bay and other small towns, had been turned down on the grounds that the latter could not meet the entrance fee and exorbitant game guarantee. It is now proposed to put the players on a "gate receipt" basis which would lessen the amount of club expenses.

Manager Zwierlein of the Black Sox declared that he will attend the meeting next Sunday. In all probability, however, the offer will be refused by the Palo Alto manager and the Black Sox will continue to play in the Peninsula Baseball League.

LOCALS LEAD IN PENINSULA BASKET RACE

By EL THOMAS

Redwood City Eagles won their second straight Peninsula Basketball league victory Wednesday with a brilliant rally in the second half to defeat the Mountain View Knights by a score of 33 to 29 in the high school gymnasium. The Redwood City Native Sons downed the Anacondas, substituting for the Burlingame Sport Shop five, by a score of 26 to 19 in the second game.

Free throws, most of which were converted into points by Bill Hubbard, guard, enabled the Knights to take a 14 to 13 lead over the Eagles at half time in their close battle.

Jordan Leads Attack

Capt. Gene Jordan, who tied with his teammate Johnny Weir for scoring honors with 12, put the Eagles into a lead with a field goal as soon as the second half opened.

"Skee" Stanton of Palo Alto, playing forward for the Knights, tied the score at 18-18 a few minutes later on two free throws and immediately followed up with a field goal. Stanton and Backatich kept the Knights out in front by a margin of two to six points for the greater part of the second half, but finally Thiele, substitute center, tied the score for the Eagles at 27-27 on an overhead shot.

Stacy Sews Up Game

Jordan's left-handed shot and a long field goal by Stacy were enough to win. Hubbard netted a long shot, but this was offset by the free throws of Jordan and Stacy.

With the Burlingame Ramblers the Eagles are now in top position in the Peninlsua Basketball League. The two teams play next Wednesday night at Redwood City.

Natives Lead Throughout

After holding a 12-10 advantage at the haf, the Native Sons cut loose in the second period to outscore the visitors in a rough battle. The Anacondas changed from a zone defense to a man-for-man defense in the second half, and this was to the liking of the Sons, who are individually tricky with the ball.

Al Hallet, who scored high with 10, and Jimmy McKay led the Sons' attack. The Natives had a sticky defense which bothered the Anacondas, although Lee and Price managed to score three field goals apiece for the visitors.

GROWTH OF CLUB IS SHOWN

From a small group of anglers in 1930 to a flourishing organization of nearly 200 Redwood City sportsmen interested in all phases of outdoor life is the brief history of the Redwood City Sportsmen's Club, which took over the municipally-owned clubhouse on Redwood Harbor January 1 as the center of its activities.

One of the leading developments of the club in the past year was its consolidation of interests with the Redwood City Yacht Club, Limited, which retains its identity as the boating division of the sportsmen's club and at the same time lends the strength of its numbers to the larger organization.

With the acquisition of the clubhouse, the sportsmen's club is laying plans for the development of complete recreational facilities on Redwood Harbor with the co-operation and assistance of the city council. Trapshooting grounds, an area for fly-casting, and a new roadway are some of the changes which the sportsmen have suggested.

The original Redwood City Anglers' Club, organized in April 1930, by a dozen rod-and-reel enthusiasts with Otto Maehl as president, staged week-end excursions to fishing points and offered prizes for the best catches.

Club Branches Out

A year later the club branched out to take in other types of sportsmen, chiefly hunters and trapshooters, and the Redwood City Sportsmen's Club was formed under the presidency of Harry Miller. Perry Downs was secretary and George Zehender was treasurer.

After growing in size, the club became affiliated with the Associated Sportsmen of California and participated in the state-wide movement to limit commercial fishing for striped bass.

As a result of his efforts in this movement, Zehender was elected bay district vice-president of the associated sportsmen.

Zehender was subsequently elected president of the local club at the first of the year. Other officers are Bert L. Werder, vice-president; Howard C. King, treasurer; William J. Graef, secretary, and L. J. Woods, Clarence E. Choate and A. J. Dempsey, trustees. Papers for incorporation are being drawn up.

Back of the movement to secure a clubhouse on Redwood Harbor were members of the Redwood City Yacht Club, which was organized in 1929 with Dr. Francis J. Gruss as commodore.

After its erection by the city, the clubhouse was dedicated in September, 1931, when fleets from the leading yacht clubs of San Francisco bay participated in the two-day ceremony.

Week-end cruises around the bay and inland waters are staged by the yacht club members.

Arnold J. Hanscom was recently elected commodore to succeed Dr. Gruss. Others of the staff are George A. Kneese, vice-commodore and corresponding secretary; S. Y. Hosta, port captain, and W. C. Downey, financial secretary and treasurer. The board of directors consists of Hanscom, Kneese Monckton, Downey, Dr. Gruss, O. D. Richardson and R. M. Lawrence. Dick Svihus is port steward of the yacht club.

Maloney Predicts Successful Year For Card Boxers

Stanford's varsity boxing team should make a good record this year in the squared circle, predicts Harry Maloney, Indian director of minor sports and boxing coach.

Maloney points to a squad of 25 men, with at least one outstanding fighter in each weight, to bear out his contention. Following the university championships to be held February 7, Maloney expects to get a definite line on the seven-man team that will represent Stanford in the manly art.

Ben Palamountain and Phil Smith, heavyweights; "Slip" Gilbert, light-heavyweight; Fred Johnson, middleweight; Jim Kelley, welterweight; W. M. Rowland and Ben Mathews, lightweights; Mark Kai-Kee, featherweight and Yuji Imai, bantamweight, appear to be the best fighters in the crop.

The Stanford coach has announced that general admission to the all-university championships will be reduced from $1 to 50 cents. Governor Rolph has accepted an invitation to attend and present the awards to the winning boxers.

Contractor Files Suit For Damages

Neil Beer, a general contractor, today has on file with County Clerk Elmore B. Hinman a complaint for $6838 damages for personal injuries incurred in an automobile accident on the Bayshore highway in San Mateo, January 24, 1931. He suffered a scalp wound.

H. S. Lord and Lord & Bishop are defendants.

CITY WON'T PAY

PORTLAND, Ore.—After P. J. Foreman bumped his head on a city traffic signal and ruined his perfectly good derby hat, he sued the city for $5 to buy a new one. But City Attorney Frank S. Grant ruled that the city couldn't be held responsible for the damages.

GRID TEAM PLAYERS HONORED

Block "S" sweaters were awarded to 23 members of the Sequoia high school championship football team and 13 girl athletes by Ernie Smith, radio sports announcer, at an awards assembly Wednesday afternoon.

It was the first time sweater awards had ever been given to Sequoia athletes for a championship in American football. More than 15 years ago Sequoia won the rugby title, but its tie with Burlingame for the Peninsula Athletic League grid pennant was a share in its first American football title.

Capt. Jim Rhoda's sweater was marked with two stars for two captaincies, in football and track. "Ky" Martin was given a sweater with five stripes in addition to the block letter in recognition of previous awards. Roy Tripp and Ed Williams were presented with managers' sweaters, earned by serving to managerships and not because the team won a title.

Katherine DeLacy, Lorraine Witte, Jennie Kennedy (manager), Barbara Bugge, Lillian Radivoj, Lucille Lane, Veronica Andrews, Thelma Byrd, Nellie Skrabo, Mary Stone, Elinor Nelson, Jacqueline Brown and Jane Duncan.

Lorraine Witte, Anna Byrd and Ethel Steen won pillow tops for breaking school records in basketball, hockey and swimming, respectively.

The flag on the White House in Washington, D. C., does not fly when the president is away from the city.

WOMAN SOUGHT IN PLANT THEFT

Small heel prints led San Mateo county authorities on a search for a woman suspected of having stolen $95 worth of plants from the old Hathaway place on the King's mountain road, which recently was acquired by Rudolph Schilling, coffee importer.

Special Deputy Clarence Wikoff of Redwood City was notified Tuesday that nine daphne, four English holly and six rhododendron plants were stolen. The loss was discovered by Manuel Silveria, gardener.

Scorpions are known to have starved for 368 days, and spiders have existed for 17 months without food.

MYSTERY BULLET HITS AUTOMOBILE

Another instance of shots being fired at passing motorists on the Bayshore highway was revealed Tuesday by Edward L. Altvater, Los Gatos printer. Several other motorists have had similar experiences recently.

Altvater, with his wife and daughter, Helen, was returning from San Francisco late Saturday night when a shot from an auto that sped on ahead of him shattered his windshield. The shooting occurred near the San Mateo bridge approach. Altvater was unable to get the number of the other automobile.

Early Sunday morning several men in a large car crowded the vegetable truck of A. P. Pemberton of Huntington Park into the mud flats in the same vicinity after firing several shots at Pemberton, he reported to Redwood City police. He believes they were hijackers who thought his truck contained liquor.

ROAD UPKEEP TOPS MILLION IN FOUR YEARS

Engineer's Report Is Basis Of Action By Grand Jury

Why San Mateo county's 1931-32 grand jury late Tuesday recommended a unified road building program was shown in the report of County Surveyor James S. James that the bill for upkeep of roads was over one million dollars in four years' time.

James' report to the grand jury shows a total of $1,280,598 was expended on county roads in the period, a yearly average of $320,149. Of this sum, 88½ per cent, or $1,133,002 was charged for upkeep of existing roadways, and only 11½ per cent went to new construction.

The county surveyor said that the costs ran roughly between $700 and $1000 per mile for upkeep and he told the jurors this was "all out of proportion to results obtained."

The board urged the elimination this year of the special 40-cent road tax.

Ask Tangible Results

The jurors recommended that the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce "concentrate its activities on a program that will bring more direct and tangible results to San Mateo county than the methods now employed; if such results are not obtained, that the county allow proportionate amounts to the various city chambers and abandon the county body.

Hospital Costs

Installation of a system of accounting to show the exact cost incurred by the Social Service Commission and the Community Hospital was urged by the jury. The cost of relief through the social aid bureau was found to be $70,000 for the year 1930-31; the operating of the hospital cost, $126,000, with $16,000 revenue for a net cost of $110,000.

A large proportion of the cost was for patients admitted to the hospital on recommendation of the social service department, it was found. A credit to the hospital for this service and a charge against the social service, was urged. "There is much room for improvement" in the latter department, the jury said.

A business manager in charge of the Community Hospital was urged.

Municipal Prisoners

The jury urged that the cities be charged for feeding prisoners placed by them in the county jail because "it is an imposition on the taxpayers of the county to bear these charges."

Additions to the county jail were also urged.

Other recommendations:

Appointment of a board of five governors to obtain greater efficiency and more business-like conduct of the Community Hospital.

That final payment be held up on the plaster and cement work on the new wing of the Community Hospital because "it is apparent that an inferior grade of material has been used."

Urge Central Garage

The jurors recommended establishment of a central garage and corporation yard similar to those now in use in other counties, where all motor and road equipment would be cared for "at substantial savings."

The purchasing agent was recommended as the proper person to have charge.

Appointment of a park commission of five to administer the Memorial Park was another recommendation.

ATT'Y TAAFFE IN TRAFFIC NET

Arrest of John J. Taaffe, attorney for Mrs. Constance May Gavin, Los Angeles claimant in the Flood will battle, on a charge of driving in the third lane on the Bayshore highway and failing to give right of way, was revealed by the issuance of a citation for his appearance in South San Francisco.

Taaffe failed to appear when his name was called by Justice Edward Farrell, South San Francisco.

COURT NOTES

The petition of Charles Howard to be appointed guardian of his son, Robert S. Howard, a minor, in place of the American Trust Company, was up for airing before Judge Buck yesterday. The date set for the trial was February 10.

The petition alleges mismanagement on the part of the trust company. The boy's estate consists of $70,000.

Lee T. Ross appeared for Mr. Howard and Theodore Roche for Mrs. Howard, now in Paris, and mother of the youth, and Mr. Erskine for the trust company.

A 1902 model automobile owned by August E. Holmberg of Superior, Wis., recently was stolen.

Trouble Piles Up Against Aviator

Richard T. Dunleavy, Mills Field aviator, who faces a trial for reckless driving and who is also being sued for divorce, has been named defendant in a $10,242 damage suit for personal injuries incurred by a San Francisco school teacher.

She is Helen T. Murray, whose head was forced through a plate glass window in an automobile in which she was riding near Mills Field, December 18, 1931.

Dunleavy drove his car into her's, she charges.

Fred Johnsons Of Belmont Hosts At Dinner Party

BELMONT. — At an informal dinner recently, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson Jr. of El Camino Real entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Neilsen of Belmont and Mr. and Mrs. C. J. E. Johnson of Redwood City.

Mrs. Daniel Kienitz of Belle Monti entertained at a children's party at her home on Saturday afternoon, the occasion honoring the seventh birthday of her son, Clifton Kienitz.

A birthday cake with seven candles formed the table decoration. Little guests bidden were Leland Rodrigue, Marian, Stanley, Collie and Loren Schoof, David and "Chuck" Solomon, all of Belmont, and Bruce McNeil of Redwood City.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kohlmoos of Belburn Village were dinner hosts on Sunday evening when their guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Elsener, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Devine of San Francisco, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dryer of Oakland.

The benefit card party given by the members of the Belmont Fire Department on Saturday evening at the schoolhouse auditorium, netted a satisfactory sum, which will be turned over to the committee for distribution.

Bridge and whist were played. High scores in bridge were won by Mrs. Fred Johnson Sr., Mrs Mildred Morgan, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Ann Ownes, Miss Christine O'Brien, Meb Johnson and Bud Vogelsang. In whist, scores went to Manuel Valladao, Joe Botto, A. J. Speur, Florence Sharkey, Mary Rogers, Claude Sorensen, Mrs. Paul Miller, Leona Rodrigue, Horace Duckenfield, Mrs. C. J. E. Johnson, S. J. Coo, Richard Rodrigue, Mrs. Harold L. McNeil, Mrs. Sylvia Mummey, Miss Anita Ordway, Mrs. Driscoll and C. J. E Johnson.

Refreshments were provided and served by the committee which arranged the affair, members of which were Fire Chief William Neilsen, John W. Herringer, Jack Marston, John Staugus, George LeGarde, Horace Duckenfield, Mrs. Marie Staugus, Mrs. E. Campbell.

At the regular meeting of Belmont Post No. 377, American Legion auxiliary unit, held this week at the home of Mrs. A. Murray Spooner, president, Miss Doris Vannier was selected as the chairman of the George Washington bicentennial celebration. Mrs. Claude Sorensen, chairman of hospitalization work reported that she had collected 300 pairs of used stockings which she will deliver to the veterans' hospital near Menlo Park for weaving work.

Mrs. Mary Lindberg was named as chairman of the food sale to be held next Tuesday, and will be assisted by Mrs. Sorensen of San Carlos, Mrs. Lovell C. Rousseau, Mrs. L. C. Vannier and Mrs. Spooner.

Members of the auxiliary will take an active part in the disposal of tickets for the dance to be given by the Belmont post at the Belle Monti Country Club on February 20. The auxiliary is to receive half of the proceeds realized at this affair. Mrs. Sorensen has been named chairman of the ticket committee, and will be assisted by Mrs. L. E. Conrad of Redwood City, and Mrs. Spooner.

After the business session the members played bridge. High score was won by Mrs. Sorensen Miss Vannier was hostess with Mrs. Spooner. The members voted to hold similar socials after the meetings which are held on the fourth Monday of the month. Mrs. Whitmore and Mrs. Witherow will be the next hostesses. Members will serve alphabetically on the social committee.

Those present at the meeting from San Carlos were Mrs. Jesse Newton Davis, Mrs. Mary Lindberg, Mrs. C. Phillips, Mrs. Sorensen; from Belmont were Mrs. Rousseau, Mrs. Louis C. Vannier, Miss Vannier, Mrs. J. C. Burke and Mrs. Spooner.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon P. Irvin, Charles Irvin and Miss Helen Gross of Redwood City were dinner guests at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklyn Loch of Oakland recently.

After the business meeting of the Belmont Woman's Club next Tuesday at 2 p. m. the members and their friends will enjoy bridge. The game will start at 3 o'clock.

Miss Victoria Roussel, chairman of the George Washington bicentennial celebration, will give a report on the work accomplished by her committee.

CLOSE CALL

PORTERVILLE — Jack Bassler, resident of a local automobile camp, was eating breakfast when a stranger walked into his tent, pressed a revolver against his side, and announced he was going to kill him. Twice the stranger pulled the trigger. Twice the pistol failed to fire. Neighbors rushed in and wrested the gun from his hand. It contained defective bullets.

Mrs. Paige Weds San Francisco Man In San Carlos

SAN CARLOS, Jan. 29. — The marriage of Mrs. Pearl M. Paige and Floyd Edington of San Francisco was solemnized at a service read by the Rev. Reed B Cherington of the San Carlos Community Church in the presence of the families, and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel L. Stewart Tuesday. The ceremony was performed before an altar massed in green and white and lighted by white tapers.

The bride, given in marriage by her aunt, Mrs. Louis Casaretto, was attired in a powder blue gown with a close fitting hat of matching shade, and matching accessories. She carried a bridal cluster of pink roses and bouvardias. Mrs. Daniel L. Stewart, her niece, was bridesmaid, and wore a green crepe de chine gown. Mrs. Casaretto's was in shell pink and carried small yellow roses.

George Steele of San Rafael attended the bridegroom.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Stewart sang "I Love You Truly." Miss Arline Stewart played the processional from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" for the recessional.

A reception and buffet supper were given at the Stewart home, following the wedding service, when the bridal party, with Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and Mrs. Casaretto received before the fireplace which was banked in white bouvardias.

Mr. and Mrs. Edington will reside in San Carlos. Mr. Edington is in business in Burlingame.

San Carlos' contribution to the bicentennial George Washington celebration will take place on Friday afternoon when the Girl Scouts and Brownies will have their tree-planting ceremony at the school house on Chestnut street.

A sequoia redwood, standing six feet high, will be planted by the scouts and dedicated to George Washington.

Betty Deane Martin will be mistress of ceremonies. The tree planters will be Dorothy Bryan, Kathlyn McGuinnis. Betty Deane Martin will give a talk on George Washington. Dorothy Bryan will read "The Tree," and Wilma Odgers and Dorothy Fodrea will sing "Trees."

The brownies will also assist in the ceremony and will form their magic circle as the tree is being planted. Miss Ruth Jaynes, Sequoia district leader, will be present.

Mrs. Wilmer Osborn is the local leader and has made arrangements for the program. The tree has been purchased from a fund accumulated by the Girl Scouts of San Carlos.

Byron W. Case, principal of the school and general chairman of San Carlos' bicentennial committee, will make a short address.

Mrs. Walker Retires As Canton Auxiliary Head

Mrs. Laura Walker received her past president's emblem and retired from her office of president of the women's auxiliary of Peninsula Canton No. 17, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, at an installation ceremony held Saturday night in Odd Fellows' Hall. Mrs. Walker is succeeded by Mrs. Blanche Hodge of Burlingame.

Other officers from Redwood City installed by Mrs. Mattie Mitchell of San Francisco were Mrs. Katherine Martin, secretary; Mrs. Fred Johnson, first aide; Mrs. Kamma Peterson, chaplain; Mrs. Bessie Vernall, fifth aide; Mrs. Elizabeth Crumb, seventh aide.

J. A. Haugeberg heads the canton as captain and assisting him will be a staff including Edward Schyve, lieutenant, and George Peterson, sentinel, both of this city.

Mrs. Rogers Will Speak On Travels At Club Meeting

On Thursday, February 4, the first meeting of the month will be held by the Redwood City Woman's Club. A business session is called for 2 o'clock, and on the program, following at 2:30, Mrs E. H. Rogers will give a talk reminiscent of her travels abroad. Her daughter, Miss Jean Rogers, is to play a group of piano numbers.

Preceding the afternoon meeting, members of the board of directors of the San Mateo county federation are to gather for a morning session at 10 o'clock to discuss the county card party which is to benefit its child welfare fund, and other phases of welfare work.

The annual play day of the local club, the jinks, will be held this year on February 18. There will be no period represented, but costumes will be typical of a cross section of the country from Broadway to Hollywood. A vaudeville performance is to be given in the afternoon, and all of the talent in the club will be used. Mrs. W. B. Kelley is chairman of the program.

Sequoia Hi-Y To Be Guest Of Palo Alto Club

Members of Sequoia Hi-Y Club will be guests of the Palo Alto Hi-Y Club at the Oakwood Inn this evening at 5:45.

George Pracy, president of the Palo Alto Hi-Y Club, and a committee have prepared a program with Kenneth Reynolds as speaker. He will tell of his trip to the Orient this past summer with a group of young men from the Young Men's Christian Association. More than 20 members of the Sequoia Hi-Y expect to be in attendance at this affair. A number of Palo Alto Hi-Y alumni will also be present.

The program has been arranged so that the meeting will adjourn in time for the Palo Alto-Sequoia basketball games.

Kiwanians Given $100 Check For Community Cupboard

Greetings were brought to the Kiwanians at their meeting this week by Al Davies, president of the Exchange Club, in the form of a $100 check which the Exchangites presented to Kiwanis to assist the Community Cupboard.

Christy Allen was present as the guest of E. T. Harrison, and was introduced as the new executive of the Redwood City district of Boy Scouts.

A report of the California-Nevada District Conference of Kiwanians, held in Fresno January 16, was made by Herman J. Phillips, who, with President John Gill, attended.

Charles Lambert, who was unable to be present at the meeting last week, gave the talk that had been assigned to him for that time, on "Club Hospitality."

The club quartet, composed of Mr. Lambert, baritone; B. E. Myers, bass; Mr. Phillips, first, and Duncan Reynard, second tenors, sang several numbers. The quartet is newly organized and this was its initial appearance.

Mr. Gill presided.

Menlo Park Family Home After Trip

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Caine have returned to their Menlo Park home after a trip to Napa, Lake and Mendocino counties. They enjoyed winter sports at Clear Lake and visited in Ukiah. Their son, Dick, accompanied them.

The University of Iowa extension division will conduct championship contests in painting, sketching and designing for high school pupils.

NEW MYSTERY SHOT STIRS MANIAC HUNT

Bullet Fired In Rear Of Woman's Auto Causes Alarm

A shot from a racing yellow sedan yesterday lodged in the rear of the car of a Millbrae woman as she proceeded down the Bayshore highway near that community yesterday morning, increasing the mystery of three or more such incidents in recent weeks.

The woman's name was not learned by police, but she showed the bullet hole in the back of her car as proof of the attack.

Took Deliberate Aim

She said the car from which the bullet was fired was northbound and passed her between Millbrae and Broadway Burlingame.

The apparently maniacal motorist, who is the object of an extensive peninsula search, took deliberate aim, she said.

The woman, police learned, became hysterical when she heard the bullet rip through the back of her car. She did not, however, immediately report the affair to police.

State Officers John Hanlon and Frank Chevalier also investigated reports of mystery shots in Brisbane, which resulted in a telephone call from an unidentified source for the South San Francisco Hospital ambulance. When it arrived, the officers reported, no one was at the scene.

Other Cases Reported

Last Friday night, Eugene Altvater, Los Gatos printer, reported that his car had been fired on at about the same spot. Some few nights before that, a Huntington Park man was fired on at Belmont, but was believed the victim of hijackers, rather than a maniacal motorist, as he and his son were kidnaped and the truck ditched after it was found not to contain liquor.

Police and sheriff's deputies increased their vigilance today with the two new attacks.

Co-Eds Will Debate On Nevada Divorces

Stanford women are taking to divorce—not as a practice but as a subject of discussion.

The women's debating team at the university announced today that Nevada's divorce laws will be the topic of a debate with Oregon State College here on February 25.

On February 29 a Stanford team will be sent to the College of the Pacific to uphold the negative of the question, "Resolved, that the United States should adopt uniform medical service."

THERE'S MORE MONEY HERE

Figures given out by the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce showing that the San Francisco bay area spends more money and has greater per capita wealth than any other region of California should be of great help in attracting new industries.

The million and a half people of the San Francisco metropolitan area spent an average of $626.68 per capita in 1929, as against an average of only $577.10 for Southern California. San Francisco's per capita lead over Los Angeles was even greater, the average retail sales being $597.75 in Los Angeles county and $786.67 here.

In the proportion of persons paying income tax a like difference appears. The figures show 96.1 per 1000 in San Francisco as against 59.9 in Los Angeles county.

All figures quoted here are for the year 1929. Since then the relative superiority of the North has undoubtedly increased, because Southern California is always more seriously affected by fluctuations between good times and bad. — San Francisco News

GOLD IN PHILIPPINES

Now there is another reason why this nation might dislike the idea of letting go of the Philippines and other nations welcome the opportunity to take them over. On the Island of Luzon, where there has been a gold district for some time, a great discovery of the precious metal is said to have been made. It is enough to start one of the largest "rushes" of modern times. Reports from the island are so glowing as to suggest exaggeration. They say the gold assays $3,000 a ton which, while not impossible, is to be discounted until all reports are in. That there has been an important gold discovery in the Bagnio district on Luzon appears to be established. If it has anything like the richness reported it may mean a boon to the world and effect great changes in the islands—Oakland Tribune.

AVIATION SURVEY

BUENOS AIRES—South America is rapidly being developed by a network of air lines between the different countries. Argentina officials have just completed a survey of a line which will connect Buenos Aires and Asuncion, Paraguay, via the province of Entre Rios and Corientes. This line will carry both mail and passengers.

AREA OF COUNTY 447 SQ. MILES

The area of San Mateo county is 447 square miles out of the peninsula's total area of 550 square miles. The extreme distance between northern and southern boundaries is 41 miles and that from east to west is 18 miles. The county's narrowest width is found toward the northern extremity, were it is but five miles from bay to ocean. On the south, the irregular boundary formed by Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties is about 65 miles. The county's greatest area is between the Sierra Morena and the bayshore
